GREEN AND LEWIS TO MAKE SPEECHES

3,000,000 New Members Counted Over Nation by Rival Organizations
During Eventful Year.

Men who make the cogs of industry turn—the laborers—will observe their day today.

Atlanta and Georgia will join the nation in paying homage to them.

Strikes, riots, and martial law marked labor's history this year. More than a dozen workers lost their lives on industrial battle-grounds and scores were injured.

The sit-down strike was used with paralyzing results and internal rivalries split labor's house into two warring groups.

3,000,000 New Members.

Yet labor, taking an audit of the 12 months past announced it had made remarkable gains by enrolling nearly 3,000,000 new members.

It pointed to the invasion of the open shop fields of motors, steel, and other big industries, and the winning of the supreme court battles for collective bargaining, minimum wages for women and social security.

President Roosevelt, also making an audit of the labor year, extended his congratulations.

2 Officers Abducted, Freed After 12 Hours

CORTLAND, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(AP) Two Johnson City (N. Y.) policemen held prisoner at the point of an automatic pistol for 12 hours by a calm-voiced desperado, were released unharmed by their kidnaper near here tonight.

Forced to drive at gunpoint from Johnson City to an abandoned farm near Cincinnatus, the officers were held until midnight when their captor took their police car and drove away.

As the officers, Patrick Cunningham and Harry Pettit, walked to a near-by farmhouse where they phoned state police at Homer, N. Y., a posse of approximately 500 volunteers and state and local police made an ever-widening search for the desperado, believed by Captain D. E. Fox, of the state troopers, to be Clyde Derrick, of Rome, N. Y., who recently engaged in a gunfight with police.

2 Prisoners Escape Police In Wild Climax to Pursuit

Eight-Mile Chase Through Sunday Traffic on North Side
Ends in Freedom for Pair, a Wrecked Automobile, 153
Pints and Flood of Protests for Officers.

City police pursued a speeding liquor car eight miles through Sunday afternoon traffic yesterday to confiscate 109 pints and 22 quarts of assorted whiskey and to capture its driver—only to have him and another prisoner escape.

Lives of many were endangered during the chase and when the liquor car ran onto the sidewalk and crashed into the walls of the North Avenue branch of the First National bank on Peachtree street.

Shots Reported Fired.

At the intersection of Peachtree and Spring street, when the liquor car, closely pursued by the police car, turned the corner at high speed several shots were reported fired.

Immediately after the chase ended, calls from citizens protesting the wild pursuit flooded police headquarters.

The entire north side apparently was going in circles during the high speed chase as the liquor car and the police machine weaved back and forth through traffic, tracing and retracing their route over the same streets.

Coroner Paul Donehoo said there was "considerable indignation" among north side citizens in the pathway of the chase.

Crashes Narrowly Averted.

The fleeing car barely avoided striking three cars at Peachtree and Spring streets, the corner said.

Donehoo said he had many friends among officers on the police force and knew what they were up against in enforcing the law, but said he did not think the wild chases were worth endangering lives of citizens.

It all came about when Radio Patrolmen Tom Avery and W. F. Sutherland answered a wreck call at Eighteenth and West Peachtree streets and found a car on the lawn in front of 1412 West Peachtree.

No sooner had they placed the driver in the police car to take him to headquarters than a south-bound light sedan passed traveling about 60 miles per hour.

The officers gave chase, hoping to stop the reckless driving before it reached downtown traffic. When they attempted to force the speeding machine into the curb,

NEW PARTY LINES URGED BY BUTLER

Strike Prevention Advocated; Wage Legislation, Closed Shop Assailed.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(UP)—Re-alignment of political parties to meet modern economic conditions and legislation to regulate labor difficulties were recommended by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, in a speech today.

The noted educator, in his annual address prepared for delivery at the Parrish Art Museum, attacked enactment of federal laws governing hours and wages as a source of "new and possibly dangerous trouble," but suggested that legislation curbing some union leaders, who exploit workers through strikes to satisfy their "thirst for power" be adopted as one way to stop the labor struggle.

Citing the trade disputes and trade unions act of Great Britain as a model, Butler said that "the strike is a form of war and there is as much reason to find ways and means of preventing it as to find ways and means to prevent military wars between nations."

Butler said the British labor act defines illegal strikes and lock-outs; provides for the protection of persons who refuse to take part in them; prevents intimidation; provides that no member of a trade union shall be required to make contribution to the political

GREEN DENOUNCES LEWIS FOR ATTACK UPON ROOSEVELT

Friend of the Workers.'

CHARGES CIO HEAD WITH INGRATITUDE

'Enemies of President Made Because of His Devotion to Labor,' Federation Leader Asserts.

DALLAS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, tonight assailed John L. Lewis, of the CIO, for what he characterized as his "autocratic and dictatorial denunciation of President Roosevelt."

Speaking at a banquet of Texas labor leaders, Green referred to Roosevelt as "the greatest friend of labor who has ever sat in the White House."

"Dictatorial Terms."

Without calling Lewis by name, but plainly referring to the CIO chief, Friday night address in which Lewis warned labor's "so-called friends" there will be a day of reckoning at election time.

Green shook his fist and cried: "He denounced in autocratic and dictatorial terms the greatest friend of labor who has ever sat in the White House."

"I resent it. I resent it emphatically in the name of millions of people who are the laborers of this nation."

Beginning his address with a discussion of local labor problems, the AFL chief suddenly launched into a heated attack on the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"Only an enemy," he declared.

ATLANTAN DROWNS IN GULF OF MEXICO

J. G. Kyle, President of Atlanta Concrete Pipe
Co., Falls From Boat.

J. G. Kyle, about 45, president of the Atlanta Concrete Pipe Company, was drowned when he fell from a fishing boat in the Gulf of Mexico about 25 miles off St. Marks yesterday.

Kyle fell overboard about 12 o'clock yesterday shortly after the party had pulled anchor to move the fishing vessel to a new spot.

In falling he struck his head on some object on the deck.

His brother dived in immediately and pulled him out. Artificial respiration was administered for several hours but to no avail.

The body will be brought to Atlanta but it has not been decided whether burial will be here or in Knoxville.

M. C. Bishop, public relations counsel for Fulton county, Georgia, one of the fishing party, said the 30-foot boat turned about and

50 ARRESTED HERE IN SURPRISE RAIDS

Suspicious Characters Rounded Up in Effort
To Halt Safecrackers.

Atlanta's most ambitious police round-up in recent years was launched yesterday in an effort to halt operations of safecrackers here.

Protests, police said, were loud and long.

At midnight last night at least 50 vagrants, persons with police records and others without visible means of support were corralled by a picked squad of detectives and arrested on suspicion for investigation.

Hotels Raided.

Detectives raided second and third-rate hotels to make their arrests and picked up others on the streets.

The round-up was ordered by Chief Hornsby and Superintendent of Detectives J. A. McKibben after an attempted safecracking at the Darby Printing Company, 215 Central avenue, S. W., was reported yesterday afternoon.

It is a known fact these officials have been greatly irked by continued operation of safecrackers in the city during recent months.

Detectives said the safecrackers were evidently frightened from the printing company by the raid.

A quantity of whiskey was found at the Pullman hotel, 79 Poplar street, hidden in a trap door when the officers arrived there last night.

Fred Martin, manager, was one of the men arrested in the round-up.

Each of the men arrested on suspicion will be fingerprinted and "mugged," officers said.

Members of the picked detective squad are Leo Nahlik, M. M. Coppenger, John Chester, W. M. Holland, John Crankshaw and J. B. King.

'Bug' Cleanup Nets $50,000 As 000 Falls

Operators Pocket Entire
'Take' From Heavy Pre-Holiday Play.

Bug operators hit their own "dream number" Saturday and pocketed at least $50,000 as players sadly began their Labor Day celebrations minus hoped for "lucky number" profits.

The operators only pocketed extra cash. It was reported not a single company was forced to pay off players.

First in Five Years.

It was the first "dream number" for operators in five years operation in Atlanta.

The number was "000."

As far as could be learned, not a penny was played on the number which couldn't be "boxed." In fact, it is very seldom players wager on the triple zero.

The triple naught Saturday yielded the operators their biggest pay off. It fell on Saturday, ordinarily a big day. On top of this, it was the Saturday before Labor Day when hundreds were playing for extra dollars to spend over the holiday week end.

Recover Losses.

With the profits Saturday, bug operators in a manner recovered much of the money lost about a month ago when double numbers fell in series, all but bankrupting even the largest companies.

Now the operators have regained some of this money they lost.

Operators greeted the holiday week end with smiles this time. Usually they wear frowns. Monday being a holiday means there

ROOSEVELT WARNS CITIZENS IN CHINA

Americans Who Refuse to Leave Remain at Own Risk, He Advises.

ABOARD PRESS CRUISER WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT
OFF BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Sept. 5.—(UP)—President Roosevelt said in a shipboard press conference today that any of the 7,780 United States citizens now in China who refuse to leave the war-torn country remain at their own risk.

Mr. Roosevelt also revealed that the Sino-Japanese situation—he described the bloody fighting as an awful mess—may interfere with his hopes to cross the nation by train later this month and visit his daughter, Anna; his son-in-law, John Boettiger, and two grandchildren at Seattle.

The President's yacht Potomac lay weatherbound off Block Island after a night of heavy rain and crackling electrical storms that caused the local weather station to post warnings for all small craft.

America's government, he said, still was on a 24-hour basis regarding its Chinese-Japanese policy. There were no plans, he added, to augment United States naval forces there because they were sufficient to evacuate all refugees.

All of the American still in China, he reported, had been strongly urged to leave. He said those refusing remain at their own risk.

No Deadline.

Mr. Roosevelt gave assurance, however, that the government had set no deadline for evacuation. A majority of Americans still in China, he explained, were missionaries and teachers living far from any seaport. He promised them ample time to leave.

The government, the President said, still was undecided about invocation of its neutrality law and its arms and munition embargoes, against both China and Japan because of their undeclared war. It was understood that the chief difficulty in regard to neutrality action was seen by Mr. Roosevelt as the presence of American citizens and United States troops in the fighting areas.

While Mr. Roosevelt declined comment on the Chinese-Japanese situation itself except to describe it as an awful mess, he said developments may force him to SHANGHAI (Monday), Sept. 6. Japan's hard-pressed war machine struck in three directions—by land, water and air—today in the long-awaited "big push" to drive the Chinese off the Yangtze delta and crush China's resistance to Japan's ambitions in Asia.

The "big push" took these forms:

1. Acting on rapid-fire orders from the supreme Japanese naval command, the second battle fleet steamed out to stretch the Japanese naval blockade over the entire 2,500-mile China coast from French Indo-China to the Great Wall.

Planes Take Toll.

2. Japanese war planes, sweeping over a 50-mile arc to the north, west and south of Shanghai, spread death and terror among thousands of helpless civilians, wholly or partially destroying scores of towns and villages in the most ruthless air raid of the war.

3. Khaki-clad troops landed along the Whangpoo, where cavalry, heavy artillery and tanks were massed at Yangtzepoo, and launched a powerful thrust at the cracking center of the Chinese line, backed by the big guns of the third battle fleet.

The military offensive was designed to cut through the heavily reinforced Chinese lines, split their communications and compress the central army forces in a giant plan for movement between Shanghai and Woosung.

It was the most thunderous fighting of this three weeks' battle to date.

Starts Before Dawn.

The Japanese attack in forces started shortly after 1 a. m. on a wide front centering in the Yangtzepoo district of the International Settlement.

First phase of the operation was an infantry drive to the northward from Yangtzepoo in an effort to straighten out the Japanese line, badly broken by last week's Chinese offensive, and to effect contact with the Japanese regiments which have been fighting their way slowly southward from Woosung between the Whangpoo river and the Shanghai-Woosung railway.

Governors Swamp Gulf Yachtmen With New Freight Differential Rig

Rivers and Proxie, Admiral

Georgia's Honor.

By RALPH MCGILL.
NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 5.—There was a little caucus today of the seven governors who will pilot racing sloops in the governors' yacht race here tomorrow afternoon on Lake Pontchartrain.

Governor Ed Rivers, who will pilot a sloop through his proxy, Admiral Andrew A. Smith, was present and permitted your correspondent to listen in. Being eager to pick up a few yachting terms, your correspondent listened with some eagerness.

The yachting terms used included words such as freight rates and differentials and that sort of thing. Even Mr. William McGregor Keefe, the yacht expert of the Times-Picayune, was confused by these terms.

Freight Differential Rig.

"Man and boy," said Mr. Keefe, "I have piloted yachts for eight onto two decades and I never heard of a freight differential rig on a yacht until this afternoon. I will attend the race with more than ordinary anticipation to see this new rig. I wonder if it is a new kind of spinnaker."

At any rate, all is in readiness for the governors' yacht race. They are to have the race on Lake

SOUTH-WIDE GANG OF FUR THIEVES PROBED BY POLICE

Arrests in Greenville and Recoveries Here Uncover Elusive Ring.

Downfall of an elusive gang of fur coat and expensive dress thieves operating in five states was predicted by police last night as an announcement was made of the arrest of three shoplifters in Greenville Friday.

Local police estimate the gang has stolen $50,000 worth of expensive clothing from exclusive shops during the last few months. Loot valued at $3,500 was recovered in Greenville and furs and dresses worth $3,000 have been seized here since the arrests.

Seven Cities Involved. Detectives in seven cities have been seeking to break the gang for months. Additional arrests are expected soon.

The shoplifters arrested Friday in Greenville are Marvin Brumal Pickett, 26, alias Robert Pruitt; Mrs. M. B. Pickett, alias June Warfield, and Miss Mildred Morgan, 25, alias Ruth Morgan, all of Atlanta. Pickett, according to Acting Detective Lieutenant S. W. Roper, was given a long-term sentence in Ohio and is now out on parole.

They are held in Greenville on charges of grand larceny. They are wanted on warrants from Charlotte and police in the following cities want them: Durham, Raleigh, Richmond, Norfolk, Knoxville and Atlanta.

Among the loot found in Atlanta by Detectives Roper, H. L. Sexton and Tom Clarke were two fur coats identified as stolen from Charlotte and valued at $1,000. At least $1,000 worth of dresses taken from Atlanta shops were recovered, Roper said.

The Charlotte furs were identified by Chief of Charlotte Detective F. N. Littlejohn and Detective W. H. Hunnicutt, both of whom praised the work of local police in recovering them.

Detective W. D. Poe, of Greenville, said the gang operates by ordering several fur or dress coats to be made in the dressing room, the thieves bundle up some of the clothes in small packages which they take with them when they leave without making a purchase.

Suspicious Saleslady. The three Atlantans were captured when a saleslady attempted to follow the two women in the dressing room, found the door locked, and became suspicious, calling police. Detectives surrounded the store, and arrested the two women and the man.

Detective Lieutenant Roper said Atlanta was the gang headquarters. Stolen goods were mailed to fictitious Atlanta addresses and marked "Hold for call."

Goods recovered in Atlanta were found at 125 Currier street, where Roper said Mr. and Mrs. Pickett have resided.

The three Atlantans are held without bond.

Roper said it will take several weeks to complete the case and check all stolen goods.

Richest Woman On Earth Has Only 78 Cents

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Sept. 5.—(UP)—Mrs. Josie Bishop was back on her desert claim today with mining engineers attempting to determine the extent of radium wealth there.

Mrs. Bishop's 20 years of prospecting in the Mojave desert was rewarded by discovery of radium-bearing pitchblende in a desert "blowout." She is known as "America's radium queen" and the richest woman in the world, although she said today that she had but 78 cents to her name.

The cause of her present poverty, she explained, was her refusal to "sign anything." Already she has turned down offers of as much as $10,000,000 for her claim. She said she wanted to see just what she had.

Geologists reported that her claim not only contains huge quantities of rich pitchblende but there is evidence of a great supply of helium and that the mine assays 365 ounces of silver to the ton. The "blowout" assays one gram of radium to eight tons of ore. A gram of radium is worth $72,000.

fund of a trade union and forbids a closed shop.

"The time has come for the enactment of similar legislation in the United States," Butler said. "I properly drafted and considered solely from the viewpoint of the public interest, this legislation may well prove to be a magna carta for the wage worker, whether organized or unorganized, in that it will open the way for him to be free from exploitation and control by the racketeers."

Butler approved of collective bargaining but said the "so-called closed shop is not only undesirable, but highly inconsistent with any doctrine of personal or economic liberty" and charged that advocates of the closed shop "are alert and eager to practice Fascism at the very first opportunity to do so."

Turning to political parties, the educator said there was "no place for a labor party... or a party bearing the name and trying to serve the interests of any other special economic or social groups."

He said that the Democratic and Republican parties are "completely wrecked" because "the commanding industrial problem cannot be fitted into the mold of traditional programs and... it divides their membership from top to bottom."

Political Puzzle Solution. To solve this political puzzle Butler suggested realignment of the two parties into the "constitutional liberal" and the "reactionary radical" groups.

He said that the constitutional liberal party, he said, "would aim to deal with the economic questions and to solve economic problems as they arise in a spirit of liberal, forward-looking and constructive teammanship, but within the limits of the principles underlying the constitution of the United States and its classic bill of rights."

The opposition party would "proceed to deal with the economic questions of the time without any restriction whatever arising from the American form of government. This radical party... would insist upon regimentation by government as a substitute for ordered and constructive liberty," Butler said. "The spokesman of this radical party would in words attack Fascism, but in fact they would exceed the Fascism in their zeal for control of individual difference and achievement of any kind."

Attacks Wage-Hour Bill. In his attack on the wages and hours legislation, Butler charged that it would destroy local authority over this subject and that the federal government to crack and break more certainly or more quickly than any attempt at a form of nation-wide regimentation of any personal or group activity which forms part of the life of the people."

The Atlanta feature will be shown at 2, 4:17, 6:34, and 8:51 o'clock each day, and the participants will be presented in person on the Erlander stage immediately after the 8:51 o'clock screening tonight. This will be the only personal appearance of contestants.

While the "stars" are arriving at the theater between 8 and 8:30 o'clock, there will be a loudspeaker in the lobby, and a broadcast over WATL. The part of the program presenting the contestants on the stage will also be carried over WATL, at 9:30 o'clock.

Ballot Box. A locked box has been placed in the lobby of the theater to receive ballots cast by the members of the audience after each performance. This box will be returned to The Constitution office every night, where the votes will be kept in a safe until the last one has been cast both at the Erlander and at the Bach chain of theaters, when the film is later shown there, and then counted by a selected committee of prominent Atlantans in the presence of officials from The Constitution, Astral Productions, Visagraphic Film Company, Station WATL and Delta Airlines.

Don't forget, your vote at the Erlander will count for twice as much as one cast at a later date. Get your ballot at the theater. The new version of D. W. Griffith's "Broken Blossoms," starring John Lewis, is featured in this week's Erlander program.

Members of the "Atlanta's Screen Debutants" cast will give a floor show at Wieuca Inn tonight after their personal appearance on the Erlander stage.

"would seek to divide and conquer where the chief asset of organized labor has always been unity and solidarity."

LEWIS CRITICIZES HEADLINES ON TALK PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5.—(P)—John L. Lewis said tonight he preferred not to amplify his speech of Friday night in which he rebuked President Roosevelt as a "fair weather friend" of labor and served notice his CIO is prepared to look elsewhere for its political allies.

"I might say, generally speaking, that the headlines overplayed the political angles of my talk and perhaps failed to take into consideration the more constructive logic of the address," Lewis told newsmen at a press conference.

The CIO chieftain drove to Pittsburgh today with his wife to make two Labor Day addresses, one in the steel town of Leechburg during the morning and a second at a monster labor mass meeting in South Park.

Claims Victory. During the questioning, Lewis said, among other things: The CIO now has contracts with operators producing 85 per cent of the nation's steel.

More than 15,000 employees of the Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube companies still are on strike.

That once capital "truly recognizes and permits labor to organize" there will be a "great diminution of strikes" in the country. The Wagner act is satisfactory without any changes, because it gives labor the right to organize. That those who suggest labor

TOKYO GOLD FLOWS INTO U. S. COFFERS

More Than $150,000,000 in Metal Has Been Received Since March.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(P)—Japanese gold the last few weeks has become the largest single contributor to the rise in Uncle Sam's holdings of the precious metal to new peaks.

While Japan sent armies and guns into North China, her gold headed for the United States, swelling the stream of metal flowing from Europe, Canada and elsewhere.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York has reported the arrival of $5,800,000 additional gold from Japan, lifting receipts from that source to more than $43,000,000 since the end of July. In excess of $150,000,000 has been sold by Japan to the United States since March, when the United States treasury the ultimate buyer.

The speeding of metal shipments from the far east since the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese hostilities has added to the interest of financial circles in the transfer of a large part of Japan's visible gold supply to Uncle Sam's treasure vaults.

pressed the opinion "both sides have made mistakes" in labor-capital disputes. He urged use of the conference table instead of strikes.

Speeches Planned. The holiday will find many public officials and labor leaders speaking to labor audiences from platforms and over the radio.

William Green, of the AFL, will speak from Dallas and John L. Lewis, his bitter rival of the CIO, has scheduled talks at Pittsburgh and Leechburg, Pa.

President Roosevelt reiterated his views against strikes and collective bargaining demands by government workers enrolled in labor union Atlanta Parade.

In Atlanta, the highlight of the celebration will be the annual Labor Day parade, which will move in five divisions, beginning at 10:30 o'clock at the Capitol and moving over Mitchell street to Whitehall to Peachtree to Baker and thence to Spring, where it will disband.

The state capital, the city hall, the federal buildings, courthouse, banks and business houses will be closed today.

Brilliance of the Labor Day celebrations in Atlanta may be dimmed by showers throughout the day, the weathermen warned last night as he promised a hot day with temperatures ranging between 70 and 90 degrees.

Show of Strength. Southern leaders of the American Federation of Labor announced last night they would stage a mass show of strength throughout Dixie today "to prove our federal still first in the hearts of southern people."

Banning of CIO affiliates from the parades was announced. "This is going to be a strictly American Federation of Labor Day in the south," George L. Googe, southeastern representative of AFL, said.

Meantime, state CIO leaders were in New York to complete plans for further organization drive in the south.

Marshal of the parade today, which will include many lavishly decorated floats, in addition to hosts of marching men, is William Strauss. His aides are E. O. McClain and C. T. Joiner. Division marshals are C. R. Jablonsky, W. L. McCulley, Henry David, Gilbert Hoods and Paul Heard.

COMMITTEE TO AID LINT MARKET DRIVE

Brokers, Producers To Finance Campaign for South.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 5.—(UP)—The Commercial-Appeal said tonight that New York brokers and southern producers had agreed to finance an "American Cotton Committee" to help the south regain its dwindling foreign cotton markets.

The paper quoted Colonel Lawrence Westbrook, Washington, economic adviser of the Southern Agricultural Commissioners' Association, as saying he "had received a telegram from an official of a New York cotton firm pledging $15,000 to the committee and support of 250,000 cotton men."

"Part of the money for financing the American cotton committee will be supplied by southern producers," Westbrook was quoted as saying.

apparently someone will have to go.

Governor Rivers was a New Orleans for the Labor Day yacht races yesterday for southern governors and could not be reached for a statement.

Commissioner Stanley said that "it seems some of them" (state prisoners) are making a last attempt to get away before the State Highway Patrol goes into action or before a possible transfer to the new Talladega prison.

The state has begun sending convicts to the new $1,500,000 PWA-built prison near Reidsville.

Juvenile Hopefuls Scan Spellers in Preparation for Contest Here

Georgia-Wide Spelling Bee Will Be Conducted at South-eastern Fair on October 15, Sponsored by The Constitution; Trophy To Be Awarded.

Juvenile hopefuls prepared for another championship contest yesterday, this time the Georgia-wide spelling bee at the Southeastern Fair on October 15.

Boys and girls in city, county and private schools made plans to enter The Constitution-sponsored competition with a handsome trophy, donated by this newspaper, and a prize of $50 cash, given by the fair association, awaiting the first-place winner.

Second best speller will get $30 cash and the third-place winner will be handed $20 to console him for falling down on whatever jawbreaker trips him.

Old Speller to Govern. The principal judge will be that inexorable arbiter, the old-fashioned blue-black speller, which will be the last recourse in event contestants survive "Spelling for Everybody Use," from the press of Smith, Hammond & Company.

For this latter volume will furnish the words for the elimination process; finalists will get into the blue-black speller if "Spelling for Everybody Use" fails to trip the nimble-minded boys and girls.

Approved heartily by Governor Rivers, chairman of the state board of education, the contest is Desperate Rebels Take Refuge in Cathedral in Strategic Belchite.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 5.—(P)—Belchite's desperate insurgent garrison took refuge in the cathedral today and held out stubbornly against masses of government troops storming that strategic town on the Aragon front.

Although the government has claimed the capture of Belchite in its campaign to break the insurgent grip on Zaragoza and northeast Spain, it was admitted that "small bands" of insurgents still were fighting in the battered cathedral.

The government said it had 80,000 men in the sector, completely encircling the cathedral and pushing on westward in an attempt to sever insurgent communications between Zaragoza and Teruel.

Prison Break Picture On Screen at Capitol

Into the land of prison breaks, the Capitol theater has brought Pat O'Brien's most recent picture "San Quentin," the story of a successful gang break which was assigned for punishment.

The screen show and the eight-act vodvil presentation, "Bubbling Over Revue," opened a week's run at the theater yesterday.

O'Brien is cast as an army captain placed in charge of the prison to restore discipline, which has sagged under old-time methods. Just before he goes on duty, he meets Ann Sheridan. Later they meet again when she is caught smuggling money to her brother, a prisoner in "San Quentin." The brother makes a successful break from a road gang to which he was assigned for punishment.

Featured in the stage revue are the Morales Trio; Fields and Russell, song and dance comedians; Edwards and Argala; Comedian George Reno and others.

ROOSEVELT FORBIDS FEDERAL WORKERS TO GO ON STRIKES

'Unthinkable', He Says, in Letter Outlining Government Position.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt took the position today that unionized employees of the federal government must not resort to militant tactics or strikes.

He also said that "the process of collective bargaining, as usually understood, cannot be transplanted into the public service." He outlined his policy in a letter to Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employees. He expressed pleasure that the national federation itself has banned strikes by a provision in its constitution.

CIO Unit Satisfied.

A copy of the letter went also to Jacob Baker, president of the CIO United Federal Workers of America, who had asked government department heads to clarify the rights of union workers in their departments. Baker expressed satisfaction with the President's statement of policy.

Mr. Roosevelt said federal workers' organizations have a logical place. "But meticulous attention should be paid to the special relationships and obligations of public servants to the public itself, and the government."

Unthinkable.

"Since their own services have to do with the functioning of the government, a strike of public employees manifests nothing less than an intent on their part to prevent or obstruct the operations of government until their demands are satisfied."

"Such action looking toward the paralysis of government by those who have sworn to support it is unthinkable and intolerable."

All floats and paraders are to be at the pony track in Piedmont park by 6:45 o'clock to form the line of march, it was announced.

MRS. T. J. CALLAWAY DIES AT AGE OF 75

Peritonitis, Aftermath of Fractured Hip, Fatal to Mother of Recorder.

Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Callaway, mother of Judge A. W. Callaway, city recorder, and Lieutenant E. E. Callaway, of the Atlanta police, died yesterday afternoon at the residence of another son, W. M. Callaway, city fireman, at 783 Tift avenue, S. W.

She had been ill for seven weeks prior to her death. Almost three months ago she was feeding her chickens in the back yard when she stumbled over a tree root and fractured a hip. Recently peritonitis set in, resulting in her death. She was 75 years old.

Born in Butts county, Mrs. Callaway was reared and educated near Jackson, Ga. After her marriage she moved to Woolsey, where all of her children were born.

She moved to Atlanta more than 38 years ago. Her husband, who was a groceryman, died 10 years ago.

She is also the mother of T. Frank Callaway, Fulton county deputy sheriff, and J. W. Callaway.

Surviving in addition to her sons are a daughter, Mrs. A. A. Harris; a sister, Mrs. Martha W. Barnes, of Jacksonville, Fla.; O. F. Preston; 28 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Final services are being arranged by Harry G. Poole.

GOVERNORS SWAMP GULF YACHTMEN

Pontchartrain just off the Southern Yacht Club grounds at 2:40 o'clock, old-fashioned time, tomorrow afternoon.

It has been built into an event which is expected to attract some 20,000 people. An unlimited number may witness the race from the sea wall and not crowd the space. It's free. That is another incentive.

Lake Guaranteed Wet.

If, however, they get a squall such as blew up here this afternoon, there may be several governors who go wet. Even Georgia might have a wet governor because Lake Pontchartrain is guaranteed to be very, very wet for the occupants of any boat which tips over in it. It requires some skill to pilot a sloop and if the skill isn't present they may come a cropper, as we say at the polo field.

Admiral Andrew A. Smith was around taking some pointers from Mr. Keefe.

"In the first place, a sloop is a boat and not a noise one makes while taking soup," he said. "It has a mainsail and a jib and to landlubbers like north Georgians, it makes no difference which is which."

"Jib" Graves.

"Did you mention Bibb Graves?" asked Admiral Smith.

"A jib, not Bibb," said Mr. Keefe.

"Oh," said Admiral Smith. "A gulf one-design sloop is Marconi rigged," continued Mr. Keefe.

"This does not mean, however, they give you any wireless warning, when the times come to 'ease 'em,' however, a game enough Governor will let her knock down until she spills the wind out of her sails. If she doesn't spill the wind, she'll spill the Governor, any governor."

"I don't mind being spilled," said Governor Ed Rivers. "They can't hurt us, can they, Andrew?"

Dry Grip.

Admiral Smith grinned dryly. Governor Ed Rivers is, like most of the other governors, sailing by proxy.

It is a fact that on Lake Pontchartrain for the past 10 days they have been having afternoon squalls of the toughest variety. So, it is a good thing that President Franklin D. Roosevelt is interested enough in the race to have the coast guard cutters out.

A look at the sloops may persuade Governor Rivers to enter the race as one of the crew. The half cabins on the sloops were made for men who weigh no more than does the Governor of Georgia. I do not think that Governor Dick Leche can get more than half himself into a cabin.

"If the Governor of Georgia does sail," said Mr. Keefe, who is my expert, "he may manage to be the only dry governor in the race. He fits the cabin and can keep dry."

It occurs to me, as an innocent sports reporter, that perhaps I have been made the victim of some political skulduggery.

It seems to me like a conference.

South Carolina Governor Anxious To Equalize Southern Rail Rates

'We Ask No Advantage Over Any Other State,' Governor Johnston Explains, 'All We Seek Is Simple Justice of Equality.'

This is the ninth and last of a series of articles presenting interviews with the nine Governors of the southeastern states on industrial and business conditions in their area and on their recently launched fight to eliminate freight rate differentials.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 5.—Under the leadership of its 40-year-old Governor, Olin D. Johnston, South Carolina has enthusiastically joined hands with her sister states in their fight for the elimination of discriminatory freight rates in the southeastern area.

"South Carolina asks for no advantage over any other state," Governor Johnston said in an interview. "Neither do we want to injure any other section or state. All we are seeking is the simple justice of an equitable freight structure that will permit the shipment of our goods to consuming areas in fair competition with other manufacturers."

"We are demanding the right, along with other states, to have a differential to ship raw materials and finished products at the same rate that is available to shippers in the favored eastern freight rate zone."

"And the day is at hand," he added with emphasis, "when this discrimination is going to be erased. Right now the Governors of the southeastern states are in the thick of a determined drive which I am confident will result in a breakdown of railroad freight rate discrimination. Success is going to be hastened because of a friendly administration in Washington."

Having started out as a textile worker, Governor Johnston knows something about the effects of discriminatory freight tariffs on competitive industries. The complaint of southern manufacturers and public-spirited officials long has been that unfair levies have served to keep wages down. They say that if a manufacturer in one section is compelled to pay a higher rate than his competitor for moving his goods to consuming areas, the added cost must come out of the pockets of labor.

"There is no denying our natural advantages for industrial development," Governor Johnston said, "and always thinking about the state."

Well, the race is on tomorrow. And a good time is being had by one and all.

Members of the party here to cheer the Georgia sailors are: General Jack Stoddard, Downing Musgrove, Mrs. Katherine Hogan, capitol hostess; Miss Lynette Moore, of Swainsboro; Dr. Cleveland D. Whelchel and wife, of Gainesville; James Henry, of Atlanta; Senator Lee S. Purdom, of Blackshear; M. P. Tucker, of Valdosta; W. M. Conyers, of Atlanta; Charles S. THIRD TERM SUPPORT PLEDGED ROOSEVELT.
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Three Governors of southern states here today pledged their support tomorrow asserted tonight they would support President Roosevelt if he seeks a third term.

They were Richard W. Leche, of Louisiana; James V. Allred, of Texas, and A. B. ("Happy") Chandler, of Kentucky.

Three others, White, of Mississippi; Rivers, of Georgia, and Browning, of Tennessee, said they did not care to comment.

Priest Floors Robber With a Right; Loot Is Discovered in Police Car

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—This is a story about a speedy priest with a mean uppercut and the first thief in New York's history who ever hid his loot in a police car.

A young man called at the rectory of St. Angelo Merid church last night, and Father Cornelius Hance emerged from supper just in time to find the visitor running down from the upstairs church office and out the door.

Father Hance pursued and after a block chase felled the young man with a right to the jaw just as two policemen arrived in a cruising car.

The young man admitted he'd stolen some money from the church office. They all went back there and $28 was missing but a careful search of the young man and the route of the chase failed to disclose a penny.

But he was locked up on a robbery charge after he suddenly said, "I'll tell you what I did with the money—I hid it under the seat of the police car while we were coming here."

And there it was.

YOUTH KILLED HERE BY MYSTERY SHOT

Ronald Smith Shooting Foe,
Although Victim Said
He Fired Bullet.

Ronald Curtis Smith, 22, of 1317 Lucile avenue, was shot under mysterious circumstances early yesterday and died last night at 9:30 o'clock at the Georgia Baptist hospital.

One Bullet Fired.

A .32-caliber pistol was found about two feet from the right side of his body. Only one bullet had been fired.

Wise told officers of the homicide squad that he had picked up Smith at Hopkins street and Lucile avenue and had taken him to the residence in front of which the victim was found.

After telling the driver to wait for him, Smith entered the house. When he failed to reappear after a reasonable time, Wise became worried and told a negro, Richard Dowell, who was about to enter the dwelling, to find Smith and send him out.

As Dowell went around to the rear of the house, Wise said, Smith stumbled from the front door with a gun in his hand.

Smith Turns Back.

Smith turned his back to the waiting taxi, and at that time, Wise said, a shot was fired and Smith slumped to the sidewalk.

The driver did not know whether or not Smith had fired the shot.

Though the victim told the doctor who treated him that he had shot himself, according to police reports, Richard Dowell and two negro occupants of 1078A Fair street, S. W., were locked up on suspicion of murder charges.

Those held for investigation are listed as Theo Dowell, 34; Kathleen Dowell, and Richard Dowell, 38. The last named lives on Burbank drive.

Another occupant of the house, Carolyn Lee, negro, told Detectives D. L. Taylor and Morgan Johnson, of the homicide squad, that she had heard people quarreling in the other side of the house just before the shot, and she had heard one person cry out "Don't shoot."

The victim's mother told police yesterday that she didn't believe her son had shot himself, saying that, as far as she knew, he had no reason to attempt suicide.

Surviving in addition to his mother are his father, C. B. Smith, and his sister, Mrs. F. G. Butler. Funeral arrangements are being made by J. Austin Dillon.

Admiral Smith Tells All From Behind Nine Ball

By ADMIRAL ANDREW A. SMITH.

As Told to Ralph McGill.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 5.—There is to be a yacht race here tomorrow in sloops and I have been asked to describe my emotions on the eve of the big race in which I am to pilot the sloop.

All I can say is that my assignment would leave me behind the eight ball if it were not for just one thing. There isn't room behind the eight ball. I guess I am behind the nine ball.

I am greatly encouraged by messages of cheer received from the great family of Smiths over the nation. If all the Smiths in the state wire me I plan to drop the messages off in bales and swamp the other sloops.

For those interested in the technical side of the race, let me say that I plan to sail my boat dead in the wind's eye, even if that is a bit painful and inhumane. I will be tactful while tacking and will handle my boom much better than Mr. Herbert Hoover handled his.

The spirit of old John Smith, the Indian fighter, appeared to me in a dream last night and said:

"Don't give up the ship."

"It's a sloop," I said.

"Don't get technical," he said. "We Smiths have got to swim together."

"As for my plans, I am going to devote all my time before the race to study. I called up a library today and they told me they had a book on yachting. It's a book called, 'She Sloops to Conquer.' I hope it has some good, sound yachting instructions."

"This boat race is a little unique. It is to be held on Lake Pontchartrain Monday afternoon. There have been many boat races run at the horse tracks here."

(Editor's Note: Seven coast guard boats, whose crews are highly trained in rescue work, will patrol the course.)

Baer Can't Muscle In On Tommy; 'I Don't Need Him,' Manville Says

Divorce From 4th Wife at a Standstill as Gray Squire Girds for Legal Wars; 3d Ex-Mate 'Deserts' Heir, Who Is 'Very Surprised' at Her Action.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Max Baer, who once boasted he had one attorney especially assigned to handle lawsuits brought by disconsolate blondes and brunettes, can't muscle in on Tommy Manville's blonde territory.

The asbestos heir said so today. He reported the ex-champion of the heavyweights was calling six or seven times a day offering to come right down to Chateau Bon Repos (Manville's haven of blondes) and "protect" his won't-be host from blondes.

"I don't want him," said Manville. "I don't need him."

The matter of a divorce from his fourth wife was at a standstill while the gray squire of Bon Repos girded for legal battle once more. With him were two blondes—and two brunettes, these despite his repeated avowal of affinity for honey-haired femininity only.

There was a report that Manville's third ex-wife, Avonne Taylor Blackwell, was now ridiculing Tommy's proposal that his ex-wives sit in judgment to determine the amount he shall settle on Mrs. Manville No. 4, the former Marcelle Edwards.

"She telephoned me that she would help me get the divorce from Marcelle," Manville said, adding that her idea was to prove the Mexican divorce was not valid and therefore he never was legally married to Marcelle.

"I am very surprised at Avonne Taylor," he said, "after all I have done for that woman."

Manville is reported to have settled $350,000 on her.

WILL JAPAN GO FASCIST?

Many of the better-informed Japanese, according to recent reports from that country, privately believe that the campaign in China will result in a form of Fascist government for their own country. Foreseeing rigid state control as inevitable if present policies are continued, they add that, in Japan, state control actually means army control.

If these predictions prove correct, the world may yet see the most drastic and rigid example of Fascism of them all in the Flowery Kingdom.

At the end of July, Japan had an unfavorable trade balance in excess of 720,300,000 yen, exceeding the previous high reached in 1924 by more than 40,000,000 yen. This resulted from heavy purchases of munitions supplies, machinery and raw materials, higher freight and commodity prices, speculative buying in anticipation of high prices, increased tariff rates and stricter state import control. Commerce Minister Shinji Yoshino is said to be considering imposition of an absolute limit to the yearly import total, even though it would inevitably handicap exports and raise prices.

Added to these factors is the fact that hostilities in China have practically halted all Japanese exports to that country, while Russia is reported as indirectly aiding China by buying almost nothing from Japan and, at the same time, refusing to sell to Japan much-needed platinum, iron ore, oil and gasoline.

Accentuating the financial difficulties faced by the Tokyo government because of this serious excess of imports over exports, is the reported dissatisfaction growing among Japanese labor. A wave of worker agitation, caused by advancing prices for the necessities of life, has just subsided, yet it is seen as inevitable that still higher prices must follow persistence in the aggressive military policy against China.

The Japanese diet has appropriated 550,000,000 yen for the initial costs, only, of the China campaign. In analyzing the sources from which this revenue must come, it is stated that new income and luxury taxes will provide about 120,000,000 yen. Banks and insurance companies indicate they can absorb about 150,000,000 yen of new government bonds. This will leave approximately 280,000,000 yen which the Bank of Japan must absorb in the form of bonds. Already taxed to capacity, it is seen as certain that this bank will have to issue new currency to cover most of these bonds.

Which means currency inflation and fast mounting prices for the necessities of life, adding to the unrest among labor and holding the germ of serious domestic troubles for the Japanese government to face. With dropping exports and sales to China suspended, it will be impossible, it is held, for industry to increase wages to offset the rising prices.

Says one commentator: "Japanese labor appears willing to make many sacrifices for patriotism, but there is some question as to how long this patriotic fever can support the will to sacrifice."

Facing world disapproval of her military policy, with the open, if not active antagonism of both Russia and Britain, and with this precarious situation in her national finances and with her own people, the road which the Japanese army authorities have begun to travel is one beset with difficulties which may easily prove fatal to their ambitions.

A SCHOOL PROBLEM

Unless the present drift of the world to militarism is stopped it is highly probable that the youngsters who will be starting back to school in the next week or two will, within a few years, be going out to kill and to die. The youth of the world seem once again headed toward the fate of cannon fodder, while the girls who sit in the same classrooms today may, in their young womanhood, be encouraging that false glorification of war through their admiration of a uniform.

Today, 20 years after the war to end all wars, conflict more horrible is raging in different parts of the world. It is becoming more and more difficult for peace-loving nations to remain neutral and the menace of attack from ruthless foes increases month by month.

Yet, after all, it is chiefly public opinion that makes war possible. That public opinion, true, may be formed by propaganda, but whatever its source it is public opinion still.

Therefore arises the thought, what are the schools, the teachers of today, to tell their students about war? Are they to remain silent and thus co-operate with Mars to leave the growing generation ripe for the slaughter? Or are they to tell their classes the truth and give them that training which will enable them to recognize, and resist, the propaganda of those who desire war?

The fate of the generation that will take control of this world of ours in a few short years, the generation that is now in the classrooms, will depend to large extent upon what they are learning today.

Thus it becomes a vitally pertinent question to ask of the school—what are you teaching our children about war?

FRONT LINE STATIONS

In modern warfare the hospital corps establishes advanced dressing stations as near as possible to the front line of battle, to administer emergency treatment to the wounded before they are evacuated to the bigger and better equipped hospitals at the rear.

None realizes the importance of these emergency stations better than the men who have fought in the trenches. Thus the proposal that Georgia Legionnaires who operate gasoline stations, restaurants and other establishments along the highways of the state, install first aid equipment for the benefit of motorists injured in traffic accidents will undoubtedly win the approval of the men and women directly involved.

Stanley Jones, state Legion adjutant and veterans' service officer, who originated the plan, expects the result to be 1,000 or more first aid stations strung along the highways of Georgia. Some Legionnaires, he said, are already providing such first aid service in their places of business and the state executive committee of the veterans' organization will be asked to work out a plan whereby every Legionnaire-operated establishment on the highway can be so equipped. This will be followed with a method of training in first aid for all owners and employees of the places.

In large degree the highways of the nation are the battlefield of peace. The number of fatalities in automobile accidents is greater, each year, than the total of Americans killed in the World War.

It is but logical that the forces of humanitarianism enter the trenches of peace to save lives that are today, many of them, lost because of unavoidable delay in reaching surgical help.

UNCLE SAM, PUBLISHER

During the fiscal year of 1937, the superintendent of documents in the United States government printing office, at Washington, sold 10,351,203 publications for a total of $813,000. These sales covered a range of 65,500 titles, all published by the government for the benefit of any who wish to secure them.

The subjects covered include some of the most fascinating imaginable and it is, in one sense, strange that even more are not sold. In view of the fact, however, that the means of advertising available to the office are strictly limited by law, the total sales are astonishingly large. The only publicity is that received from a monthly, current catalog of titles, a document catalog containing the historic record as to title, author, subject, etc., and a weekly list of selected publications, furnished free to all applicants.

Some of Uncle Sam's best sellers and the total number of copies sold, include: Classroom Growth Record, 2,130,162 copies; Infant Care, 1,735,066; Prenatal Care, 819,847; Keeping Fit, 572,119; Healthy, Happy Womanhood, 554,628; The Wonderful Story of Life, 367,599; and many others.

In a recent letter from the public printer to Representative J. Walter Lambeth, of North Carolina, chairman of the congressional printing committee, it is stated:

Public documents are no longer mere dry statistical records—their province is the whole field of human knowledge and they touch human living on every hand; their importance to the general public and to the business interests of the country cannot be fully estimated.

In an effort to increase the total revenue from this source it is now proposed to stop the practice, common among members of congress, of sending out large quantities of free copies of these federal publications. It is planned to limit the free list to libraries, government officials and collaborators with the department. If this is done and if the valuable nature of the documents available at nominal cost is given new publicity, it is probable the United States printer will show vastly increased sales during the current fiscal year of 1938.

A Nazi admirer calls Hitler the greatest healer in history. They say his brand of salve works miracles, but the patient must have faith.

Infringement: Japan, blowing up the Shanghai area without the special permission of the inventor of gunpowder.

Haile Selassie's fighting lions proved a washout in the African struggle, but the consensus is that Japan has something in those beetles.

Editorial of the Day

A FARM TENANCY SOLUTION

(From the Tampa Daily Times.)
 One of the six major laws enacted by congress is a tentative step toward solving the intricate problem of farm tenancy. There is no assurance that the legislation to aid tenants in purchasing land will solve the problem that is a burden on southern economic progress.

But in Georgia a 60-year-old bachelor farmer, cited by the State College of Agriculture as one of the four "master farmers of 1937," has contributed a valuable lesson in farm management which every landlord, tenant and sharecropper could study with profit as a more sensible solution than bureaucratic federal control.

There are 22 sharecroppers and six renting tenants on Martin M. Norman's 2,000-acre plantation in Hartwell.

His plan includes crop diversification, rotation and proper use of winter cover crops and tenant conferences, and every few weeks all the tenants climb aboard a truck for a tour of their neighbors' farms and a discussion of mutual problems. Material is furnished tenants to improve their homes and they are urged to keep their children in school.

The average sharecropper plot is 28 acres, two to be planted in cotton in winter and peas in summer, 12 in cotton, five in corn, five in oats, two in wheat, one in sorghum for feed and syrup and one for a home garden. The average tenant has been with "Mr. Martin" 10 years, while two of them have been on the plantation 30 years.

Thus are defeated the common bugaboos of tenancy—frequent moving, poor housing, soil destruction, ignorance and ill health.

"The croppers know that when they make money for me they also make money for themselves," he says. The realization of that simple fact is better than any federal legislation.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

CHINESE SENTIMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Chinese sentiment toward America in certain important Chinese circles is quite different from that expressed in the honeyed phrases of the diplomats, according to certain influential Washington friends of the besieged nation.

Not for quotation, of course, they are citing an old Chinese proverb to describe America's foreign policy. Secretary Hull, they say, "is trying to cure the itch by scratching his boot."

Official comment on Secretary Hull's recent public communications on the subject of American attitude toward war will never be made by the diplomats. But others, equally influential in Chinese affairs, put the comment privately, like this:

"He has issued two statements. One, very noble in sentiment, but very general in terms, addressed to world powers. Another, equally high-sounding, which mentions the Far East specifically. Neither calls for action."

From the critics seen in what they call this negative attitude an about-face of America's policy, as at least attempted by Secretary Stimson in 1932. They point out that, at that time, the United States was ready to join with the other powers in an attempt to invoke the nine-power treaty and the Kellogg antiwar pact.

At that time, Great Britain refused to go along.

Now, say these men who are in a position to follow the developments that have been taking place behind closed doors, Britain is willing, but the United States refuses to go ahead.

If this revolutionary change in the attitude of the United States toward China has taken place, these inquirers, unable to get an explanation which apparently their own officials lack, privately hazard some guesses on the subject.

It is possible, they suggest, that the munitions makers, in spite of the thorough airing given their previous machinations, are at their old game. Or the bankers?

From the standpoints, an attempt to stop shooting and begin talking would, at worst, do no harm. Negotiations always take place in the end. Why not start them before many more people are killed, they are asking unofficially.

TEAPOT DOME SHOWS PROFIT The boys with the sharp pencils in the Department of Justice have been doing a little bookkeeping on the famous Teapot Dome affair, the scandal that rocked the Harding administration and ended up with a jail sentence for one of his cabinet, Albert Fall.

The result of the book-balances is rather remarkable. The government has come out of the affair a two-to-one winner financially.

As a result of the suits against the Doheny interests, the government has recovered more than thirty-one million dollars. The oil companies got only a little above fifteen and a half millions out of the oil they sold while holding leases on Teapot Dome.

The Doheny interests obtained contracts and leases of the navy's petroleum reserve No. 1 in California and Wyoming through "fraud and bribery," but it was not immediately discovered, and they received, before the contracts were voided by the courts, $15,577,152.23, according to the meticulous adders in the Department of Justice.

The government, as a result of the litigation, was able to turn over to the treasury exactly $31,041,322.62.

A 50-50 SPLIT While there probably will be later a highly publicized report on details of the sales campaign of the famous Democratic handbook, the distribution of the profit on actual sales of the volumes can be revealed authoritatively. The books brought $250 each. This was split 50-50 between the Democratic committee and the high-powered outfit that did the selling. The head of the sales company divided up what he got among his salesmen as he saw fit.

DEPARTMENT HAS ALIBI John Lewis has another bone to pick with the administration, but this time the government isn't to blame.

The Department of Agriculture furnishes a part of the farm and home program broadcast daily on one of the largest radio hookups. But it doesn't operate on Saturdays. The period on that day is turned over to various farm organizations. Recently, speaking under the auspices of one of these societies, someone attacked the CIO, and Mr. Lewis wanted to know how come. Secretary Wallace's broadcasters explained they weren't guilty.

So another "split" didn't come off.

A Puzzling Regulation.

Having occasion, a few days ago, to send a valuable paper by mail, I carefully posted it, then for the post. Meticulously addressed a stout envelope, placed them within and closed it.

Then, to make assurance doubly sure, I took a strip of paper and mullage and affixed it firmly across the flap of the envelope. Feeling that it was not enough for the flap mullage and also that any would-be thief couldn't open the envelope without tearing the paper.

Took it to a branch postoffice for registration and was informed it was against regulations to accept a letter for registration with such a strip pasted across the back. I was told sealing wax could be used, if desired, but not a strip across the flap.

It seemed silly to me so I stamped out, irate, and went to address another envelope conforming with the P. O. regulations.

Seeking Explanation.

However, curiosity was aroused so I went to the main postoffice and sought the office of the superintendent of mails, to ask some questions. The official in charge, though I forget his name, is an excellent fellow. I've talked to him before.

In response to my query he told me that all he could say, officially, was that it was a regulation, and a strict one.

"Washington makes those rules," he said, "and simply notifies us. They never give explanations, but require that we obey without question. So I don't know the why of this rule."

"Don't some of your other customers object?" I asked.

"Lots of 'em. All we can do is send their complaints on to Washington and I don't know what replies they get. All I know is that the rule hasn't been rescinded. Either, we've received reiterated instructions to enforce it in every case."

"I wonder why?" I ruminated. Then he advanced a theory. Explained, carefully, that it was nothing but an idea of his own and was in no sense official. Just something he'd figured out as an individual and was being used as a postoffice official, but as one individual to another.

He said he suspected there must have been some case where a dishonest employee had stolen from a registered letter with such a piece of paper pasted on it. That the thief had been able to remove the paper, open the envelope, re-seal it and replace the paper strip with another like it.

He pointed out that, with registered mail, the postmark is always stamped two or three times, half on the flap and half on the envelope. This, he said, is done to prevent opening, because it is difficult to re-seal in such a way that the postmarks will match exactly. If the strip of paper is over the flap this can't be done.

Maybe

He's Right.

Maybe he's hit on the right explanation. But it seems to me it would be even more difficult to reproduce the postmarks if they were on a paper strip across the flap. But perhaps I'm wrong.

Anyway, there's the regulation and I imagine it will remain. The henchmen of Jim Farley are hard to move once they have promulgated a new rule. So, when you have mail to be registered, leave the flap uncovered. Unless you fancy a blob or two of sealing wax.

Personally, sealing wax doesn't appeal to me. It's messy to apply and anyone, with a hot knife blade, can remove it and replace it with practically no evidence left to reveal the tampering.

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Friday, September 6, 1912:

"Two lady mooses, one of whom made a speech, met with a hundred more progressives in the convention hall of the Piedmont last night to hear John M. Parker, of New Orleans, and several local men speak on the progressive party movement. Mrs. Sam Jones, of Cartersville, was one of the ladies. The other was Mrs. Margaret McWhorter, of Gainesville, lawyer and editor."

From The Constitution of Tuesday, September 6, 1887:

"The weather was pleasant, the council chamber was crowded and the members were all in fine trim when Mayor Cooper called the body to order yesterday afternoon. But every body was tired when the council adjourned. The prohibition question was the interesting event of the session."

This Morning The Watchdog Can Be as Free As the Wolf But Some Wolf Hunter Will Get Him

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"In the sweat of thy face"

Shalt thou eat bread."

In honor of work millions will do no work today. Millions will parade and thousands will make speeches. The celebrating includes, or should include, all who labor at anything anywhere, organized labor and unorganized, farm labor and white collar, farm labor and factory, everybody. To celebrate by not working is pleasant for a day but not for a routine. If it is true that machines will eventually leave little or no labor for human hands to do and that most of us will have for our greatest problem the problem of how to spare time, humanity is in for some dull days indeed. The curse that was put upon man in the Garden of Eden has become man's greatest boon. The necessity of work has turned out to be psychological as well as economic. The right to work has become a right to find life interesting and meaningful as well as a right to be sheltered, clothed and fed.

There are people in the world who are well fed and clothed and housed but who have no work to do. They are the ones to be pitied on Labor's day, for it is no holiday to them. The unhappy and also the least attractive job in the world is the workless one, the lot of the man or woman who has nothing to do but have a good time, to whom pleasure is not a by-product but an object, for whom there can never be such a thing as vacation or holiday, whose life is subjective rather than objective and in whom idleness makes an introspective devil's workshop.

This is a day for honoring all that laboring men have accomplished through organization and intelligence. It is a day for being proud of the improvements in labor's lot and the promise of still better things to come. But it is a day, too, for honoring work itself and recognizing it as mankind's boon against introspection and unhealth.

If all the books which people have borrowed and not returned were placed shelf on shelf they would make a library large enough to contain all the verses written to shame the sinners who borrow books and don't return them. From Mrs. Herbert W. Hill, of Birmingham, comes one more verse for our increasing collection:

"Tis sad that Dante didn't tell Just how they torture them and burn them—
 Our friends that we all know so well.
 Who borrow books and don't return them."

Always, though, when borrowers-and-not-returned-of books are mentioned this writer feels impelled to make an exception in favor of those who didn't really borrow the book but simply had it loaned to them. It happens to everyone on occasion that some enthusiast will insist on lending him a book in which he isn't the least interested and which he has not the slightest intention of reading but which he must accept rather than hurt the enthusiast's feelings. In our personal code of book-returning ethics, such books should be returned at long leisure—if at all.

Mrs. Mable P. Dean, a director of the Florida W. C. T. U., writes from DeLand that in her interpretation the words "in the beauty of the lilies" from the Battle Hymn of the Republic refer "to the inner beauty and sweetness born within Christ and not to any outward surroundings." Lily May Caldwell, of Birmingham, suggests that the reference is not to the birth of Christ upon earth but to His birth to eternal life at Easter when lilies are in bloom.

Not for long did emancipation last for males at beaches and other bathing places. In our observation this summer the shirtest vogue is ending fast and more and more bathing suit tops are seen. The return to tops is being led, apparently, by the so-called "Piedmont" classes but it is, perhaps, a more democratic thing to do, since it hides such appalling differences in the shape and vegetation of chests.

Game Bird Scarcity.

During the early history of this country any bird or animal that was good to eat was considered legitimate game, and the more food a species supplied, and the less effort required to procure it, the more highly it was esteemed, says the National Geographic Magazine.

Quite naturally the deer and the turkey received the most attention. Gradually, however, they became scarce, and the attention of those who supplied food to ever-increasing populations turned toward the smaller species, such as the grouse, the heath hen, the wild pigeon, and waterfowl.

All kinds of devices were employed for harvesting these cheaply and in great quantities. The heath hen and the wild pigeon, unable to withstand the slaughter, were exterminated; the whooping crane is so near the precipice of extinction that it is apt to topple over any moment; the Eskimo curlew, Labrador duck, and great auk are gone forever, and perhaps 75 trumpeter swans are left in the entire United States. Gradually we have come to our senses. Let us hope it is not too late. We no longer feel that a bird is fair game just because it is good to eat; we no longer offer strings of robins and meadowlarks for sale in the market just because they make good potpies.

Genghis Khan.

In 1227 Temujin, Genghis Khan of the Mongols, died at 65, one of the two greatest conquerors in history. That his death might be kept secret from subject nations, members of his funeral escort killed every person they met on the way to the hidden burial place. It was his grandson, Kublai Khan, who inspired Marco Polo's classic pages.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Never in our time nor at any time in history has the law had power enough to make people behave well. If all were determined to raise Cain, neither police nor soldiers could keep them virtuous. So it is clear that the foundation and support of all that is decent in civilization is not force but the voluntary respectability of free people.

When men of the Stone Age learned by experience that certain behavior was hurtful to the individual or the tribe, they made it taboo. And thus in time the race developed a system of ethics and morality based on good sense and necessity. If a thing is commonly called "wrong," careful analysis will show that it is also somehow harmful.

The unthinking and inexperienced often fail to see this simple and fundamental truth, and therefore regard rules as arbitrary restrictions imposed without reason or justice. The result is a perennial "revolt of youth."

Within recent years, foolish and irresponsible people, prostituting honest science, have taught young people to discard "inhibitions" and "repressions," and thus have done incalculable mischief. For while rare unfortunate, who were mental cripples, really suffered from these psychic handicaps, normal youngsters were restrained only by the wholesome warnings of conscience, and to these normal ones the new teaching meant: "Disregard your conscience and follow your natural inclinations."

The new teaching was welcomed with whoops of joy. Everybody likes to be free and wickedness is exciting, and here was license to run wild without feeling guilty of wrong. Self-restraint and self-denial were old-fashioned and stupid. In the name of science we descended again to the moral standards of the barnyard.

It must be conceded that the sacrifice of chastity and promiscuous sex indulgence is "natural." The barnyard gives ample proof. But if we are to be natural, all rules of conduct must be ignored. It is natural for a child to "steal" what it wants, as a young wolf does. It is natural to deceive, to fight and kill, to disregard marriage and seduce and ravish—in short, to be guided by desire alone and restrained only by fear.

Even the most "modern" have no desire for a system that natural. They know civilization would be wrecked if nobody practiced self-control or self-restraint. So their demand for freedom really means: "Let me indulge myself while the rest of you keep the world in decent order."

Our race has come this far by following the hard road of discipline and self-restraint. We can "outgrow" the old rules, but we can't do it and stay civilized.

Seats for Non-Aryans

PARIS.—In one of the northern suburbs of Berlin the number of seats in the local parks has been apportioned as between Jews and Aryans on the basis of their relative numbers in the district. One hundred park seats have been made available: 92 are for Aryans and eight for Jews. The Aryan seats bear the notice, "Forbidden to Jews." The arrangement, it is declared in the press, was made owing to the complaints of Aryans against the Jews, and is recommended by the local council of other districts.

The Black Corps, the organ of the Schutz Staffeln, Goering's special police, carries an attack in its last issue upon the Jews in the manner which accompanied the incidents of two years ago, when a number of Jews were roughly handled in the west end of Berlin for allegedly being impudent and presumptuous. The Black Corps declares that the Jews are showing themselves again en masse at bathing resorts and other places, notwithstanding the existence of the notices "Jews not wanted," which are to be found in almost every resort. The paper mentions specifically a well-known restaurant and beach in the western outskirts of Berlin.

When it is taken into consideration that there are now left some 300,000 Jews in the whole of Germany and that on one sole locality, a western suburb of Berlin, where the Jews have congregated they still form only 8 per cent of the population, the "en masse" appearance, as alleged by the Nazis, must be taken with a grain of salt and even a potful of salt.

After the Blood Purge.

With the recent elimination of the many managers of Soviet industry, the problem of their replacement has become so acute that numerous rank-and-file workers have been elevated to positions of great responsibility almost overnight. Thus Russia's latest captain of industry to attain prominence is Yakob Yustin, a 28-year-old mechanic, who until recently, was a foreman in the Kaganovich Bearing Plant at Moscow. Yustin has been appointed director of this huge plant, which employs more than 15,000 workers, and is said to be the largest plant of its kind in the world. The new director, it is interesting to note, entered the party ranks only last November. Nor does he constitute an isolated case.

Throughout the country young people from the lathe are being promoted with extraordinary rapidity towards the state, their youthful enthusiasm, and

JOHNS HAILS START OF NEW PENAL IDEA IN TATNALL PRISON

Sees Change From Chain Gang to Industrial System at Jail Inspection.

REIDSVILLE, Ga., Sept. 5.—(AP) The establishment of a woodland "Alcatraz" gave Georgia a start today toward evolution of its old chain gangs into an industrial penal system.

Prison Commission Chairman G. A. Johns, conducting newspapermen on a tour of the $1,500,000 gleaming white institution, described it "as near escape-proof as you can get it." The prison was built with federal aid.

Johns said the institution has become a bugaboo for chain gang inmates and blamed the prospective change in the penal system in part for numerous recent escapes. The prisoners, he asserted, dread the loss of contact with the outside world which work on open roads provided.

Chain gang escapes led to an executive order from Governor E. D. Rivers that wardens and guards involved would be automatically discharged.

The latest escape occurred yesterday. A negro, indicted on a murder charge, fled from the automobile of Hancock County Sheriff R. C. Wiley.

The new prison plant is officially known as the Tattall county prison, but the 207 convicts who already have been transferred there have dubbed it Georgia's "Alcatraz."

Room for 2,000 inmates. It rises four stories from a scrub pine forest near here and is topped by a two-story tower in which the death cells and electric chair chamber are located. Surrounding it is a wire fence, surveyed by guards in three towers. The guards are armed with a pistol, shotgun and rifle. Johns said training on the shooting range will be part of their regular work.

The prison has accommodations for 2,200 inmates. Individual cells will house 320 "bad actors."

Johns described the new prison as the "beginning of an evolution of the Georgia penal system from its present state into an industrial system," asserting Georgia wants to get her convicts "off the roads" and end the idea of visitors "that the whole state is a chain gang."

By industrialization of her penal system, he said, Georgia hopes "to save money and turn the men out able to make a living."

Officers of the Griffin district of the State Highway Patrol will be the first of the new unit to start active service. The eight men of that district have been ordered to report at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning at state headquarters in Atlanta.

Men assigned to the Cartersville district will report the next day at the same hour and place, while the remainder of the patrol will report on Thursday.

Those to report tomorrow are Theodore P. Cross, Wilson D. Drew Jr., Jewell L. Futch, Alvah H. Hooks, William E. McDuffie, Albert B. Myers, David F. Simmons and John H. Strickland.

Those to report Wednesday are George C. Alexander, Eugene S. Burke, Robert G. Golins, Burnis J. Parkerson, George M. Stokes, James C. Walton and Leroy Wiggins.

Boom for President Is News to Pershing

WATONGA, Okla., Sept. 5.—(UP)—General John J. Pershing probably doesn't know about it, but a small boom for President has been started for him.

A man walked into a printing shop here yesterday and ordered 1,000 campaign cards, reading "John J. Pershing for president."

"Is the general running?" asked the clerk.

"Not that I know of, but I'm starting him now," the stranger replied.

12 POWERS ASKED TO JOIN SUB WAR

Withdrawal of Friendly Undersea Craft From Mediterranean Sought.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—(UP)—Twelve European nations, including Italy, Germany and Russia, have been invited to a conference next week to act on a plan to wage war on "submarine pirates" in the Mediterranean through a pooling of their navies, the foreign office announced tonight.

The conference, proposed by France and agreed to by Great Britain after a series of mysterious attacks on neutral vessels along the Mediterranean trade routes, originally was envisaged as including only nations bathed by the Mediterranean.

The Franco-British plan was understood to contemplate an agreement by all the 12 conference powers, as well as the Spanish Loyalists and Insurgents, to withdraw their submarines from the Mediterranean routes.

After that any submarine found there by the vigilant warships of the co-operating nations would be the object of "shoot to sink" orders.

Germany was invited, the foreign office explained, because of her participation until June 1 in the now-defunct system of international non-intervention patrol off the Spanish coasts.

The other nations invited to the conference, in addition to France and Britain, were Russia, Rumania, Albania, Greece, Bulgaria, Turkey, Egypt and Yugoslavia.

Russia, already reported to be preparing to move her Black Sea fleet into the Mediterranean, demanded a role in the "war on piracy" because she has been one of the major victims of the mysterious attacks on oil and coal ships.

The meeting will be held, probably Friday, at Lausanne, Montreux or Ouchy in Switzerland.

The field in the qualifying play with a 63 per cent game, Miami was runner-up with 60 per cent. The Atlanta team included Whitner Cary, Mrs. Betty Black, Edward Nix and John Marshall.

Miriam Hopkins Is Honeymooning At Sea Resort With Her Director

Couple Will Return to Hollywood for Work Today.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Miriam Hopkins, screen star, and Anatole Litvak, Russian-born movie director, were honeymooning at the seaside in Coronado today.

They flew to Yuma, Ariz., late yesterday and were married in a hotel by Justice of the Peace Ed Winn. The blond actress gave her age as 34. Litvak, who directed her in the picture, "The Woman I Love," said he was 35.

The couple planned to return here tomorrow, as Litvak is directing "Tovarich," with Claudette Colbert in the starring role.

Miss Hopkins and Litvak have been frequent companions at Hollywood social functions since they first met a few years ago.

The French government decorated Litvak for his contribution to their motion picture art. Among his European successes were "May-erling," "Equipe" and "Be Mine Tonight."

Miss Hopkins, a native of Savannah, Ga., carved out her career in dramatics after attending Goddard Seminary in Barre, Vt., and the University of Syracuse. She started in a musical chorus and reached Hollywood in 1931.

JAPANESE LAUNCH SMASHING THRUST

fan-wise to the westward, following out the new tactics devised by Lieutenant General Iwane Matsui to counteract the Chinese attack in the Lotien sector.

Beginning of the big push was made possible by the landing of an estimated 25,000 Japanese infantrymen at the Wayside and other wharves on the west bank of the Whangpoo river, in the Yangtzeopoo district, during the past 24 hours.

The landings were effected without difficulty as the operations of the Japanese bombing planes and a 36-hour barrage from 20 Japanese warships in the river had eliminated all the Chinese salients in this region and engulfed the machine-gun nests which caused heavy casualties to Japanese units landing on the Yangtze river shore, farther northward.

His Weakest Point. The drive from Yangtseopoo hits the weakest point in the Chinese lines since General Chang Chun-chung, Chinese commander, withdrew a number of regiments from this area last week for his own smashing offensive in the Lotien-Woosung sector.

Other developments during the past 24 hours included:

1. The Japanese opened their southward drive from Tientsin toward Shantung province and attacked the Chinese advanced positions in Machang north of the Yellow river.

2. Both Japan and China delayed replies to demands of the United States, Britain and France that Japan withdraw her warships from immediate vicinity of the Anglo-American area of Shanghai's International Settlement and the French concession and that China withdraw her troops from the Pootung area so that occidentals in the foreign areas would not be endangered.

3. Japanese Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye addressed a Sunday session of the emergency meeting of parliament in Tokyo and pledged the government to fight the war through to a finish. He asked huge new military appropriations. Parliament was to pass the government's economic program this week, making Japan virtually a totalitarian state.

4. China matched the Japanese program by making Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek supreme dictator and creating a war council which will unify every phase of national life.

5. With the war spreading to more than half of China, the United States consular service appealed again to all Americans to flee danger areas to seaports from which they can be evacuated.

6. The Chinese admitted that the Japanese were extending the warfront in South China. They said Japanese warships shelled Sanwei, 80 miles northeast of the British crown colony of Hongkong, Saturday, and later attacked the towns of Houmen and Makung, where they attempted to land troops. Japanese naval planes bombed Chinese positions around all these cities. There also was fighting at the great South China port of Amoy and the British destroyer Diamond was sent there from Hongkong to evacuate British nationals.

Report Red Help. 7. Reports of Soviet Russian military assistance to China continued. The Japanese Domei news agency said Marshal Feng Yuxiang, Chinese vice minister of war, in Nanking, was negotiating with the Soviet general, Lepin, a Chinese-Soviet military understanding. Russia was asked to as-abandon hope of making the west coast visit this fall.

Undecided on Trip. The President pointed out that he had made no definite decision one way or the other regarding the cross-country trip and emphasized that it would not be a political journey if he does go. He described the visit as an "intake" excursion giving him the opportunity to study the passing country, and perhaps visit such northwestern projects as Bonneville dam.

Mr. Roosevelt said he might say a few informal words at intervals on the journey as he did during last summer's inspection of the midwestern drought area.

The President had little to say about the domestic situation. He told newsmen he had not heard of L. Lewis' radio speech Friday night, which took him to task for the administration's labor policy. He said he had not yet decided whether to call congress in special session this fall or wait until the regular convening in January for a new drive for his legislative program.

After a long chase, the police car locked bumpers with the speeding car on North avenue near Peachtree. Immediately thereafter, the whisky car struck an auto driven by G. L. Braden, of 356 Ponce de Leon avenue, damaging the left fender of the Braden car, and the front of the liquor machine.

The whisky car, still locked with the police car, ran over a red light at North avenue and Peachtree and onto the northeast curb, pulling the police car after it.

Officer Avery chased the driver half a block on foot and captured him. In the meantime, the prisoner, whose name was never learned, held by the officers from the first wreck, escaped when Officer Sutherland ran to stop the liquor car from rolling. With his prisoner gone, Sutherland called headquarters for a wrecker as Avery held the liquor car driver and a city fireman guarded the whisky.

A black coach passed slowly in front of Avery and his prisoner. The prisoner broke loose from the officer, jumped into the car. Avery leaped for the running board to stop the car.

Shots Fired. The driver of the rescue car attempted to sideswipe several automobiles and a telephone pole, endeavoring to knock the officer off. The policeman fired several shots at the tires.

Occupants of the car grabbed at Avery's gun and then battered him off the running board. He returned to his partner and the car. They counted up, Whiskey, a wrecked car, bruises, a chase and two missing prisoners—names unknown.

U. S. CHECKER KING

Asa Long Wins Title as Opponent Quits.

MARTINS FERRY, Ohio, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Asa Long, of Toledo, added the United States checkers championship to his world title today when Willie Ryskind, of New York, withdrew from the finals after he and Long had played eight draw games.

Ryan, whose official dumbfounded Long and officials of the American Checkers Association, explained that he was exhausted after battling for two weeks in the national tournament and thought the match would continue indefinitely.

The Japanese columns will swing west China with war supplies and otherwise a return for China's recognition of Soviet domination of large areas in Sinkiang and Chinese Turkestan. China likewise offered not to conclude peace with Japan without Moscow's consent.

It was at Shanghai that the fighting was bitterest and most spectacular because of the great number of Americans and other foreigners endangered.

BISHOP STRESSES RELIGIOUS UNITY

Candler Urges All To Walk Same Road at Dalton Centennial.

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 5.—"Religion always has been the hope of our country and still is and what we need today is for all denominations to walk the same road and mind the same things," Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, told a large audience here this afternoon at a religious service at the First Methodist church inaugurating Dalton's centennial celebration.

Bishop Candler reviewed briefly the religious history of America and of Georgia and Whitfield county in particular. "Georgia always has been religious," he said, "and I am glad that this section is populated by a noble people with religious tendencies. The main business of the church is to save souls and if the people won't come to the church then the church must go to the people."

Bishop Candler said the Rev. George Whitfield, for whom this county is named and who came to Georgia in 1738 from England, was one of the greatest preachers of all times.

"Whitfield preached up and down the Atlantic coast from Maine to Georgia and was the first to bring the original colonies a consciousness of unity," Bishop Candler said.

Bishop Candler was introduced by the Rev. L. M. Twigg. Prior to his address, the Lindale band gave a concert.

PRIEST REBUKES WELLS ON 'MYTH'

Prelate Speaks of 'Shallow Popular Writers.'

NOTTINGHAM, England, Sept. 5.—(AP)—H. G. Wells' recent suggestion that educators stop perplexing students with "myths of creation" today drew what was interpreted as veiled criticism from the Catholic church.

Although he did not mention names, Father H. V. Gill, of Dublin, speaking before scientists who heard Wells' address September 2, condemned "certain amateur and shallow popular writers who sneer at myths of creation."

Wells, in a speech before the British Association for the Advancement of Science, had attacked antiquated methods of education.

TWO INJURED WOMEN

REPORTED RECOVERING

Misses Alma Mortenson and Isabel Horne, of Jacksonville, Fla., were reported recovering yesterday at Piedmont hospital of injuries received in an auto-truck collision near McRae Saturday.

Miss Mortenson suffered fractures of the hip, pelvis and femur and is in a fairly good condition, hospital attaches reported. Miss Horne received only bruises and is in "good" condition, it was said.

The women were brought to the Atlanta hospital early yesterday morning.

Rosh Hashonoh Festival Begun

With the sounding of the Shofar, the sacred ram's horn, at sunset, the 16,000,000 Jews throughout the world last night began observance of the festival of Rosh Hashonoh, ushering in their 5,698th year since the traditional Creation.

The day is the first of 10 holy days, culminating in Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, which begins at sunset September 14. In Jewish lore, Rosh Hashonoh is the judgment day, when destinies for the coming year are inscribed in the Creator's books, which are sealed on Yom Kippur after the period of repentance.

BARKLEY OUTLINES U. S. PEACE EFFORTS

Majority Leader Speaks Before Inter-Parliamentary Congress in France.

VERSAILLES, France, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Senator Albert W. Barkley, majority leader of the United States senate, today outlined before the 33d inter-parliamentary congress the efforts made by the United States for peace.

Senator Barkley said "we have avoided contracting alliances or making engagements of a political nature, knowing that we can better support universal peace by safeguarding our political independence."

He expressed hope that time would bring increased faith in Democratic regimes.

He listed first among efforts of the United States to obtain universal peace the Inter-American Conference at Buenos Aires last December.

1,197,644 STRIKE WITHIN 6 MONTHS

There is No Indication of Let-Up Unless Employers Capitulate to Demands

By ARTHUR F. DEGREVE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(UP) Organized labor's grim struggle to unionize millions of American tollers threw 1,197,644 on strike during the first six months of 1937, an increase of 300 per cent over the same period last year, Department of Labor statistics showed tonight.

The figures, made public on the eve of the national Labor Day celebration, disclosed that 372,285 workers were involved in strikes during the first half of 1936 and only 788,948 were idle during the entire year due to industrial strife. From January 1 to July 1 of this year strikers lost 17,934,596 man days of work as compared with 13,901,956 during the same period last year.

Cost Soar in Millions. Labor authorities declined to estimate the amount of wages lost by the strikers or the financial cost of the strikes to industry but the figure is known to reach hundreds of millions of dollars. A major part of the strike activity is traceable to the militant drive by John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization to unionize workers in the mass production industries on the "one big union" basis.

There was no indication tonight that the nation could look forward to a steady reduction in the number of strikes, unless employers capitulate to the demands of the heads of the rival and warring factions of organized labor. Both Lewis and William Green, president of the AFL, are determined to drive on.

Crackers Lose to Pels, 11 to 3; Darkness Prevents 2d Game

CALLAWAY WINS LAKEWOOD RACE IN SPEEDY TIME

Drexler, Burns Also Triumph; Labor Day Events Start at 2

Buddy Callaway, Macon boy; Shorty Drexler, Indianapolis, and Shorty Burns, of St. Louis, making his debut on the Lakewood track, were winners Sunday afternoon in the first of two days of holiday racing. The second and final of the Labor Day races will be run at 2 o'clock this afternoon when the time trials move away from the starters' tape. The real race program will begin at 3 o'clock.

Callaway, fully recovered from a July 11 crash at Lakewood, nosed out Shorty Drexler in the time trials with a run of 42.9 seconds, only two seconds away from the track record. Buddy finished first in the first half of the feature race, first in the three-mile match race and second in the 15-mile feature. He led the final race through 13 miles, but was forced to finish standing up as a universal joint and connecting rod burned out.

RUNS SECOND. Drexler, the smallest driver in America, was second in the time trials, second in the first heat, third in the three-mile match race, first in the Australian pursuit race and fourth in the 15-mile Southern Sweepstakes feature.

Burns, in his first trip around the track, was third in the time trials, and first in the Southern Sweepstakes 15-mile feature, nosing out Callaway in the last mile.

Burns took the lead at the 12th mile, just before Callaway began to develop motor trouble, and won out as the Macon boy burned out his car regaining the lead, only to lose in the last lap.

Herschel Buchanan, of Shreveport, making his first appearance here took the second heat of the five-mile preliminaries and was second in the three-mile match race, nosing out Drexler in one of the greatest races of the day.

GOFF WINS. Speedy Goff, of Birmingham, always a contender at Lakewood, finished ahead of the field in the consolation race, in another great finish.

There were 10 new drivers, making their debut on the Lakewood track, and the program was one of the most successful ever run here. The races began at 3:10 and finished within two hours for a new Lakewood race.

Red Singleton, an Atlanta boy, furnished the excitement of the afternoon when he threw a right rear wheel off the track on the back stretch and finished the time trials on three wheels.

The first race was outstanding with Callaway nosing out Drexler, after the two had shared the first four laps. All six entries, the fastest cars in the time trials, finished within a quarter mile of each other.

And this afternoon at 3 o'clock another seven-event program will be run with more than 20 cars entered. Ten of today's drivers are new to the Lakewood track and are certain to furnish some real excitement.

STARS TO FACE BEARS TONIGHT

DALLAS, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Chicago's burly Bears were 10-7 favorites tonight to defeat the College All-Stars tomorrow evening in the Cotton Bowl.

But betting didn't interest the professionals. They sought the answers to these questions: What's in store from the weather man? Will Sammy Baugh be off form?

The answer to the latter query was obviously no. Baugh has never been off form with his arm passing. He's missed occasionally with a muddy ball and the Bears hoped the answer to the first question might result in a few more misses.

The forecast was for cloudy weather, with the possibility of rain.

In Baugh's huge fist go the chances of the All-Stars for victory, their coaches believe. Matty Bell, of Southern Methodist, and Leo (Dutch) Meyer, of Texas Christian, frankly say they will depend upon Baugh.

The former T. C. U. ace quarterback, who's tossed the pigskin more than two miles in his brilliant college career, will alternate with Buzz Bivuld, Marquette's All-American halfback.

WEHRLE TAKES WESTERN OPEN

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Wilford Wehrle, of Racine, Wis., defeated Chuck Kocsis, of Detroit, one up on the 36th, to win the western amateur golf championship today.

Wehrle sank a 30-foot putt on the last green for a birdie 3 to cinch the match. Kocsis, with an 8-foot putt ahead, halved the hole with a conceded birdie. The two came onto the last green with the Wisconsin star one up.

Kocsis, trailing by four holes as they started the afternoon round, outshot his young foe and whittled down his lead but couldn't match Wehrle's phenomenal putting.

Wehrle took the lead this morning on the second hole and was never headed.

BREAK O'DAY

HEINEMANN PARK, NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 5.—For a time this afternoon it appeared that it would be possible to move the Governor's yacht race from Lake Ponchartrain to the ball park.

The New Orleans weather was being itself, which is to say, it was full of wind and rain and steam and heat. Even Mr. Bill Keefe, who is used to such weather, was complaining.

At last it cleared, temporarily at least, and I found Mr. Earl Mann, the president of our brave lads, the Crackers, standing on one foot in a puddle of water which had collected inside the park. Mr. Mann looked like a forlorn crane.

There was a report going around town that Mr. Mann, while here, would proffer a job to Larry Gilbert, manager of the New Orleans ball club.

"I have not offered Mr. Gilbert a job," said Earl Mann. "And I will not make any offers. Nothing has been done about the managership of the Atlanta ball club. We are too busy trying to stay in this play-off to think about anything but winning some games. Any report I have offered anyone a job is entirely false."

Larry Gilbert has, however, received some offers. One American league club and one National league club has offered a place to Gilbert. One Southern league club, not Atlanta, has made a vigorous effort to sign him. The man doesn't lack offers.

SO MUCH FOR THAT.

So much for that. The local situation soon will be settled. You may have read the newspapers a few days ago and seen where the minority stockholders of the New Orleans club temporarily had blocked the sale of the ball club to the new owners of the franchise.

On September 7, which according to the Atlanta calendars will be next Tuesday, the majority stockholders gently but firmly will take the ball park, anyhow.

"You should have been there," one of the minority stockholders said this afternoon. "The control had 1,236 shares and the minority holders had 201. Only 41 shares showed up to vote so we were nosed out 1,236 to 41."

The new owners are headed by Seymour Weiss and Seymour Weiss will see that Larry Gilbert remains in New Orleans if it is within his, Seymour's, power. And there are some people who say that the well-known hotel man, who was a co-pilot of the late Huey Long's machine, has some power left.

Baseball in New Orleans would be very strange without Larry Gilbert. He started here as a scoreboard boy and a vender of peanuts. He now is manager and a league director. A lot of towns would like to have Larry Gilbert. He knows more baseball than 10 ordinary managers and he is one of the better fellows. But all indications are that he will remain at home. Which is to say in New Orleans.

ANOTHER BARRYMORE.

In addition to being a splendid manager, Larry Gilbert is one of the finest dramatic actors baseball has known. He can, when getting an umpire told, run the gamut of emotions. He shames some of the boys who are getting $2,000 per week in Hollywood for emoting.

This afternoon, for instance, a lad named "English" Shilling, who plays second base for the New Orleans people, spoke harshly to Polly McLarry when called out on strikes. He spoke so harshly that the earth near home plate dried up and became dusty.

Polly McLarry ejected Shilling from the game and Larry Gilbert, lacking players because of injuries, put on a protest which made Spartacus' address to the Gladiators sound like a high school essay. He did it with gestures. He invoked the heavens, he shook his clenched fists toward the sky. Mr. McLarry remained impassive.

They put Dick Hahn, second-string catcher, in right field. Dean moved to second and Grimes went to third. Galatzer went in to the infield, Hahn taking his place. As fate would have it, the first ball hit went to Hahn and that young man dropped it.

Larry Gilbert came off the bench as if propelled by an electric shock.

"Look what you've done," shouted Gilbert at the hapless McLarry. And he emoted again to the great delight of the crowd.

VERY PRECARIOUS.

The baseball situation became very precarious here this afternoon. The Pelicans won the first game this afternoon and the Crackers abruptly left third place and were barely hanging in there on the fourth rung of the baseball ladder.

Little Rock has made one of those well-known mockeries of the pennant race but there is a merry little battle going on between New Orleans, Atlanta and Nashville to see what club shall fill the third and fourth place spots.

It was Johnny Humphries, of Clifton Forge, Va., who beat the Crackers here this afternoon. It was his tenth straight victory of the season, his twentieth of the season and his sixth of the year over the Crackers. As a matter of fact, the Crackers have defeated him only once this year and that was in a rummy game. They never have bested him on the baseball field.

Winning 20 games in these days of the rabbit ball is something of an accomplishment. Not many pitchers, in the majors or minors, win 20 games.

Humphries is the lad who has been pitching all year with a sore arm. They had to work on it a couple of times this afternoon. He has struck out 186 men and ought to try very hard to keep that sore arm. He couldn't do as well with a good arm. He already has been sent for by Cleveland and will be in the Indian's camp next spring. Which will suit the Crackers just fine. They have been willing to give him back to the Indians all year.

SOME FOOTBALL TALK.

There is a modicum of football talk around New Orleans. They do say that this year the L. S. U. Tigers will have a somewhat different type team. It will not be quite as of yore. It will not be light. The boys will weigh around the 185 and 190-pound mark. They will be faster. There will be more passing. Young Bussey, who is named Young Bussey just as Young Boozer at Alabama was named Young Boozer, is one passer. And Cotton Milner will do some more.

Speed and passes will be the chief offensive asset. And that isn't a bad asset. They have lots of rebuilding to do but plenty of men with which to do it.

At Tulane they expect some improvement. There are seven or eight middleweight names there this year. By 1938 there will be enough of them to bring the Green Wave back to tidal wave proportions.

Down this way, they keep talking Tennessee and Alabama. But that probably is the native modesty of the section. It might be well, for safety's sake, to include the Baton Rouge Tigers.

Garlington's 70 Leads Qualifiers After 3d Day's Play.

By ROY WHITE.

Qualifying rounds for Capital City's first annual invitation tournament will end this afternoon with match play scheduled to start Tuesday morning. Dick Garlington's 70, two strokes under par, shot Thursday in the first of four days of qualifying, remains in the lead.

Bill Healey, a member of Capital City's team, had the best score of Sunday's qualifying with a 36-39-75.

SINKS CHIP SHOT. Johnny Westmoreland, president of the Capital City Club, sank a chip shot from off the 18th green for a birdie two and finished with a 78, which, according to present scores, should assure him a place in the championship flight.

Ike Osburn sank a No. 4 wood shot for an eagle three on the long fourth hole and finished with a 78, only a few strokes back of the leader.

The tournament, the first invitation to be played in Atlanta in more than a dozen years, will be played in "easy stages" and at the convenience of the participants.

PRIZES ANNOUNCED. There will be a trophy and prizes for each individual member of the team winning the team trophy. The team competition was not announced on the original plan but was added Saturday afternoon by officials of the club.

Capital City's team will consist of Bill Healey, Charlie Black Jr., state winners, and Bicknell was runner-up in the city amateur several years ago.

Today's qualifying round will be open to every amateur golfer in the state and the entry list will remain open as long as time will permit the playing of 18 holes before dark.

Beard, Allen Win At Black Rock.

Roane Beard and Gerrard Allen, with net 78's, shared first prize Sunday afternoon in the weekly blind bogey on the Black Rock course.

Beard, a member of Georgia Tech's football team, had one of his best rounds. He drove well past the road on No. 8 for his best drive of the day and one of the longest drives at the Black Rock.

Second place in the bogey went to Stuart Murray and E. C. Davis, with George Shealy, well-known Atlanta airplane pilot, alone in third place.

T. J. Newman Cards Ace at Black Rock.

T. J. Newman, of Detroit, sank a tee shot on the 17th green at the Black Rock Country Club Sunday afternoon to become the latest member of Atlanta's hole-in-one club. Newman is the 27th man to score an ace in Atlanta this year.

Newman played with Max Smith, J. S. Wray and R. L. Jones. Max Smith had the best score of the afternoon at Black Rock, a 73, one stroke over par.

Four Share Prize At Ansley Park.

D. A. Bolton, Dr. J. N. Brawner Jr., Dr. Don Cathcart and H. A. Moses shared first prize Sunday afternoon in the weekly blind bogey on the Ansley Park course. The winning score was 80.

Second place went to O. D. Phillips, T. H. Brown and L. H. Hyneman, one stroke away from the winners.

The booby prize was won by D. S. James.

Score of 120 Wins East Lake Dogfite.

C. A. Williams, T. L. Thompson, R. L. Warwick and George Hiles won first place Sunday afternoon in the weekly dogfite on the No. 2 East Lake course. The winning score was 120, one of the best to be turned in in recent years.

Second place went to K. A. Stephenson, J. Yeomans, J. E. Hoole and N. Sands, two strokes behind the leaders.

Dr. B. B. Gay, A. T. Bassett, George Murphy and A. W. Gay finished in third place.

Other prize winners included Weldon Branch, Keith Conway, W. H. Calhoun and J. B. Stewart, A. N. Anderson, R. D. Ison, G. Elliott, George Fogg, D. C. Lacy and W. L. Bates and Cliff Eley, William Johnson, R. P. Fraser and R. B. Smith.

Brown, Malone, Warwick Leaders.

Vernon Brown, J. C. Malon and R. L. Warwick took the lead in their respective divisions Sunday in the three-day medal play tournament on the East Lake courses.

Brown had a 65-71-136 to pace the third division with Malone, well in front in the first division. Warwick holds first place in the second division.

The finals will be played today over the two courses. Players are divided into class, according to their handicaps.

A special one-day dogfite will be played this afternoon on the No. 2 course. Entries must be in the golf shop by 1 o'clock and play will start at 1:45 o'clock.

PLAY IS DELAYED AT FOREST HILLS

Bitsy Grant Meets Wayne Sabin for Quarter-Final Berth.

By BILL BONI.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 5. (AP)—Rain—that didn't go away and that, the U. S. L. T. A. hopes, won't come again another day—today put a more effective damper on the high-ranking stars of the combined men's and women's national singles championships than any "dark horse" ever could have applied by means of an upset.

The storm that cracked down on the West Side Tennis Club last night also broke up last night. But this afternoon the rain let loose in bucketfuls again, left puddles on the field court.

ADDED PLAY.

Not only will the upper-half brackets in the round of 16 in both divisions be filled, but in addition the lower-half competitors, who advanced to the final round of 16 yesterday, will fight for berths in the quarter-finals.

By this telescoping of two days' competition into one, the U. S. L. T. A. hopes to adhere to the original schedule whereby the semi-finals will be played on Friday and the finals on Saturday—barring, of course, further weather interruptions.

This telescoping, however, also has given the tournament officials a neat problem in assigning the various matches to courts worthy of their appeal.

PRESENTS PROBLEM.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm, top-ranking foreigner, will be opposed by Hal Surface in his bid for a quarter-final berth; and Miss Marble, with Margot Lumb, English Wightman cup player, who is eighth on the foreign seeded list, as her rival for a spot in the round of eight.

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, Atlanta's scrambling atom, will meet Wayne Sabin, Hollywood, Cal., youngster who is no bigger, on the grandstand court in their lower-half duel, also with a quarter-final bracket as the prize.

Katherine Rawls Wins Third Title

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—(UP)—Katherine Rawls, Miami girl who for the last seven years has been a dominant figure in world and national swimming competition, won her third 1937 women's A. U. championship at Fleischacker pool today by capturing the 440-yard free style event.

Succeeding the title formerly held by Lenore Knight Wingard, now a professional, Miss Rawls captured today's feature in 5 minutes 36 seconds. Earlier in the championships, which conclude tomorrow, the Florida girl won the 300-yard medley and the mile free style.

JOHN HUMPHRIES CHECKS ATLANTA FOR SIXTH TIME

Rookie Wins 20th Game, 10th Straight; Crackers in Fourth Place.

By JACK TROY.

HEINEMANN PARK, NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 5. Johnny Humphries, the 21-year-old rookie from the campus of the University of North Carolina, today became the first Southern league pitcher to win 20 games.

It was Humphries' sixth consecutive victory of the season over the Atlanta Crackers, who lost third place, New Orleans going ahead of them. The score was 11-3.

The loss in the first game sent the Crackers back to fourth place, the Pelicans taking over third place by half a game margin.

The second game was called on account of darkness at the end of the third inning. The score was 1 to 1.

HARRIS VS. DRAKE.

Luman Harris and Tom Drake were engaged in a hot pitchers' battle when nightfall descended. A concluding double-header will be played tomorrow afternoon, starting at 2:45, Atlanta time.

It really will be Labor Day for the Crackers, who are faced with the tough task of winning both games in order to hold third place and stave off the challenge of the fifth-place Nashville Volunteers.

Emil Leonard and Bobby Durham will pitch for Atlanta against Jackson and Bill Perrin.

While today's loss snapped the Crackers' eight-game winning streak, Emil (Dutch) Leonard tomorrow will go out after his eighth straight victory. If Leonard gets it, it will be his fifteenth victory of the season. Dutch believes he'll stop the Pelicans.

Humphries aided materially in the victory, which was his tenth straight, getting two hits and driving in three runs. Sigmund Jakucki, Pel pitcher subbing in the outfield, hit a home run in the seventh with one on.

Both Leo Moon and Lawrence Miller were shelled from the mound in the Pel's big assault. Governor Rivers, his staff and other members of the official staff here for tomorrow's yacht race, witnessed the game.

HALTED BY RAIN.

It was necessary to bail out the infield before the Crackers and Pelicans could start play in the first game. Something in the nature of a cloudburst descended in the first inning after Luby walked and Hill fled to Weatherly.

After 45 minutes of such rain, it took a crew of a dozen negroes to bail the water out of the infield, using drags and brooms.

The Pelicans scored three runs in the second. Shilling singled, Grimes walked. Then Luby threw Dean's grounder away at first, Shilling scoring. George and Humphries went out, but Luby singled to right, sending Grimes and Dean across. The turn of events so irked Moon he threw the ball over the grandstand. Galatzer lined to right-center and Malihoo made a great one-handed catch.

LUBY DOUBLES.

The Crackers scored one in the third on a single by Mauldin and a double by Luby.

Shilling addressed some ill-timed remarks to Polly McLarry after he was called out on strikes in the fifth, and he was promptly tossed out. Gilbert fumed but was then forced to send Galatzer to first, Carson to left, Weatherly to center and Hahn to right.

Hahn promptly dropped Hill's fly in the sixth and Jakucki went to right. The Crackers got their second run in this inning. Luby beat out an infield hit preceding the error on Hill's fly and went to third on the misplay. He then scored on Rose's fielder's choice.

The Pels also scored in the sixth, making the score 4 to 2. Grimes doubled, Dean walked and George sacrificed. Humphries fled to Maunio and Grimes was safe at the plate on a close play.

MOON LOSES GAME.

Moon, who allowed only five hits, left the game in the seventh, Galvin batting for him. Miller took he mound.

Insult was added to injury in the eighth. Weatherly doubled and Jakucki, Pele pitcher subbing in the outfield, socked a home run over the left-field fence. Miller, who had pitched a full game Friday.

Fading Cubs Lose Pair to Pirates; Giants Lead by 2 Games

CHICAGO CUBS SECOND AFFAIR UNDER PROTEST

Giants Idle; Dodgers Beat Phillies To Take Sixth Place.

By THE UNITED PRESS.

The Chicago Cubs' pennant hopes were subjected to another jolt Sunday when they were walloped twice by the Pittsburgh Pirates. The double defeat increased the idle New York Giants' National league lead to two games. The Cubs were blanked, 7 to 0, in the opener, being held to six scattered hits by Red Lucas while the Bucs lashed French and Shoun for 10. Lucas drove in three runs when he singled with the bases loaded in the fourth inning. Clay Bryant lost the nightcap although he held the Pirates to only four hits. The game was played under protest after a decision by Umpire Lee Ballanfant had played hock with some Cub strategy in the fifth. With the bases filled as the result of walks, Lloyd Waner grounded to Herman Brandt, who was on first, ran out of the baseline to avoid Herman, and was automatically ruled out by Ballanfant. Herman pegged the ball home in the belief he had a force play at the plate. Umpire Magerkurth first called Brubaker out, but when informed by Ballanfant that Brandt had been ruled out, reversed his decision and called Brubaker safe.

Both of Boston's scheduled games at New York were rained out.

St. Louis and Cincinnati divided a dual bill, the Reds scoring, 3-2, in the opener behind Gene Schott's seven-hit hurling, and the Cards blanking Cincinnati, 1-0, as Lon Warneke pitched a four-hitter in the aftermath.

The Brooklyn Dodgers scored two runs in the ninth to beat Philadelphia in the first game of a double-header. The second encounter was rained out. Thus the Dodgers displaced the Phils in sixth place.

PIRATES 7-0; CUBS 0-1.

Time Out! By Chet Smith

"We're fox hunting—Have you seen anything of a couple of horses?"

Travelers Clinch Southern Pennant

Ray Starr Fails in Iron Man Attempt as Little Rock Wins Nightcap, 9-4.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Little Rock clinched the Southern association pennant today by trouncing Nashville, 9-4, in the second game of a double-header after the Vols won the opening battle, 4 to 0.

Starr, who shut out the champions in the opener, essayed an "iron man" role but the Pebs clouted him from the box in the second inning of the nightcap and ran Speece, who relieved him, to the showers in the same frame. Kyle finally stopped the Travelers but it was too late.

Pointexter, who pitched the game that gave Little Rock a mathematical certainty over Memphis, second place club, hurled great ball for six innings. He blew up in the seventh, allowing Nashville to score three runs.

Not since the halcyon days of 1920 when a rostering crew of bunting bucks brought home the bunting under the leadership of Norman "Kid" Elberfeld, had Little Rock basked in diamond glory.

PROTHRO HERO.

With the decisive game in the standings, the man who made all the cheering possible—James Thompson "Doc" Prothro—became the city's public hero No. 1. Starting from scratch in 1934, he converted a stumbling cellar outfit into a headlining winner with little more than his own baseball genius.

The Travelers couldn't miss now if they lost all their remaining games. Ahead lies only the Shaughnessy playoff to determine the first division team will meet the Texas league champions in the Dixie series.

When Manager Prothro took the helm here in 1934 he prophesied (amid no little snickering): "I believe we can have a first division team in three years."

Prothro is a dentist by profession, a successful farmer in off seasons—but ask any Little Rock fan and you will be told that he is a managerial genius in a baseball park.

YORK RAPS 31ST, BIT TIGERS BOW TO CHISO, 5 TO 2

Yanks Return to Old Form and Smack Senators, 9 to 5.

By THE UNITED PRESS.

The Yankees slugged out a 10-5 victory over Washington yesterday. Joe DiMaggio doubled with the bases loaded and Lou Gehrig clouted a home run during a third-inning rally in which New York scored five times. Kamp Wicker, who hurled the six innings for the Yanks, was the winning pitcher and Lanahan, who also lasted six frames, was the loser.

Chicago licked Detroit, 5-2, to mount within a game of second place. Whitehead and Brown combined to hold the Tigers to seven hits. A three-run spurge in the eighth broke a 2-2 deadlock and sent Chicago to victory.

Brown, who relieved Whitehead in the seventh. Received credit for the win, and Lawson, who was touched for eight hits over the route, was the victim. Rudy York hit his thirty-first homer of the year with none on in the second.

Cleveland walloped St. Louis twice. Trosky's home run with two mates aboard gave the Tribe the opener, 9-5. Galehouse pitched the Indians to a win in the second, 2-1. A walk to Averill and Trosky's long double pushed the winning run off Oral Hildebrand in the eighth. The double defeat gave the Browns a record of seven defeats and one tie in their last eight starts.

Philadelphia at Boston was rained out.

POLIO WAR WAGED
ALONG TWO FRONTS

Warm Weather Is Again
Forecast as 2 New Deaths
Are Reported.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(UP)—medical science arrayed itself to-night along two known courses—blood donations from those who have suffered from infantile paralysis and nasal sprays among those who have not yet become its victims—to prevent further spread of a "mild epidemic" of the disease already general throughout the nation.

Weather conditions east of the Mississippi river, where temperatures dropped as much as 20 degrees in the past 48 hours, aided the drive by reducing conditions favorable to spread of the disease.

But the U. S. Weather Bureau warned that warm weather already was returning to the Dakotas and Nebraska and would move eastward before the end of the week.

Forecasts for tomorrow were "fair and continued cool."

Eleven new cases and two deaths in the past 24 hours were reported in Chicago. Toronto, Ontario, had three Saturday and officials there announced school reopenings would be delayed.

Chicago parochial schools followed the lead of public institutions today and announced they also would postpone reopening dates. Similar announcements already have been made by public school officials in Buffalo, N. Y., Milwaukee and Waukegan, Wis., Omaha, Neb., Council Bluffs, Iowa, and San Diego county, California.

MISSING GIRL, 13,
IS RETURNED HOME

Turns Up at Friend's Residence in New Jersey; Mother Collapses.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(P)—Constance E. Lyman, 13-year-old Junior High school girl who had been missing since Tuesday, was returned to her home tonight by her mother and the family attorney.

Attorney Walter R. Young, who accompanied Mrs. Charlton Lyman, the girl's mother, into New Jersey to get her, said Constance was found at the home of a girl friend "south of Perth Amboy," where she had appeared just before lunchtime today.

The Junior High school graduate was last seen Tuesday when she rode away from her home on a bicycle after a family quarrel over the selection of the school she should attend.

Her mother collapsed on their return home, and Young said he was not authorized to give out any information concerning the whereabouts of the girl from the time she left home until she appeared at her friend's home today.

ATLANTA AND THE FUTURE

There soaring into the sky lies Atlanta of the future. Immense pillars of steel and concrete, mighty girders spanning wide canyons... Atlanta rising like a dream in the future.

And who shall toil and who shall labor that it may come into reality? Labor, strong and glorious... Labor, mighty and enduring.

Today the clamour and the wheels are silenced... men pause to reflect on the sturdiness of this world wide fraternity. We, too, are pausing today in tribute. Labor, we honor you... strong... abiding... courageous. Labor, we salute you.... true sons of progress.... You are the builders of Tomorrow.

Mary Livingstone Presents Picture of Tailored Smartness in Navy Serge

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.—Whatever the trend may be, you can be sure that tailored smartness will always lead the fashion parade—in Hollywood as well as the rest of the style-minded world.

Mary Livingstone, appearing in Paramount's "This Way Please," owns a tailor of new serge with a single-breasted jacket and a straight short skirt. Mary's hat and shoes carry out the tailored note, but her blouse stresses a feminine note with a soft jabot edged in lace and accented by twin clips of rhinestones.

For traveling, Milo Anderson designed an unusual costume for Jane Wyman to wear in her recent picture, "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air." The blouse, of gray pebbly weave crepe, is cut extremely full, showing a flared tunic, and is finished in an all-over pattern of green wool embroidered dots. The upstanding collar of Kelly green suede is stitched to resemble a feather. Kelly green gloves and bag, and hat and shoes of gray complete the costume.

A chic daytime dress designed for Miss Wyman to wear in the same picture is made of navy blue bengaline showing a squared yoke with high fitted collar finished with a gored skirt. Loose crushed gauntlet gloves of powder blue crepe matching the yoke and visored beret showing touches of the same fabric prove an effective contrast.

Margaret Lindsay brings the two-piece dress into favor again with a new version made of brown frost crepe, featuring exaggerated shoulders, a white embroidered batiste collar and jabot, and crushed girdle of self material.
Her felt tricorn is swathed in a coarse fish net veil.

For early fall wear, Margaret recently purchased a daytime frock of black sheer wool showing a high fitted waistline, broad shoulder treatment and a set-in pleat at the skirt front. A softening note is added by a white chiffon scarf which tucks in at the neck, and pointed cuffs of the same fabric.

Alice Brady recently purchased three of the dresses she wore in her latest picture, "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air." The first, accented with a pair of bracelets, sunflower clip at the shoulder, and lila fashioned of carved topaz, is a simple Lovebird green satin gown. The severity of the dress of pebbly weave satin is relieved by diagonal shirring on the bodice, while a cape of self material is draped in loose folds across the back.

Another is a gray afternoon dress showing shirred shoulder treatment and flared skirt. A fetching muff of the same shade and fabric as the dress has a center panel of gunmetal beading and bands of gray fox at either side.

For Miss Brady's third costume, Milo Anderson has designed an evening redingote of black crepe satin splashed with brilliant rose and green, over a foundation of heavy black satin. The huge upstanding collar and bands on the cap sleeves are of lustrous black lynx.

Silver fox is still tops among fur-loving film stars. Anita Louise, Warner Brothers' leading lady, was recently seen wearing a stunning hip length cape made of seven skins, worn over a gown of black satin.

Fashion parade of the week...
Joan Blondell at the Warner Janssen Hollywood bowl concert in a white wool coat modeled on full-skirted princess lines, edged with silver fox, and a brimless high-crowned hat... Also Madge Evans in a three-piece eggshell rough tweed ensemble, slouch eggshell felt hat banded in brown, and brown and white pumps.

Jeannette MacDonald, wearing a descent steel blue hose with a gray sheer wool suit... Josephine Hutchinson at the Brown Derby wearing high-crowned brim hat, sandals and bag all of bronze kid with a brown and white figured frock.

Peeples-Hollums Rites Take Place.

The wedding of Miss Eunice Peeples and George Gillum Hollums took place Wednesday at 616 Spring street, East Point, in the home which they will occupy upon their return from Florida.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Tombs McGaughey.

The maid of honor, Miss Marie Peeples, sister of the bride, wore blue satin and Miss Eloise Thomas, bridesmaid, wore pink satin.
Their dresses were fashioned along princess lines. Each wore a corsage of pink roses and sweet peas.
Hubert Hollums, brother of the groom, was best man and Roy Hudgins was groomsman.

The lovely bride was gowned in white satin. She wore a floor-length veil caught at each side of her head with orange blossoms.
Her bouquet was of white sweetheart roses and snapdragons.

Mrs. K. H. Peeples, mother of the bride, wore navy blue lace. Mrs.
A. A. Hollums, mother of the groom, wore brown crepe. Both wore corsages of pink roses and sweet peas.

After the ceremony, Mrs. K. H.
Peeples entertained at a reception at her home, 217 Chatta-hoocnee avenue, East Point. Misses Edna Salter and Hazel Purdie kept the bride's book.

FORESTER GETS BERTH.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—(P)— H. C. Berckes, secretary-manager of the Southern Pine Association, announced that B. M. Lufburrow, state forester of Georgia for 11 years, has been appointed forester of the association. Lufburrow, a native of Oliver, Ga., will assume his duties later this month.

Mary Livingstone presents a smart appearance in this tailored navy serge with a single-breasted jacket and straight skirt. A feminine touch is added by the blouse, with its soft jabot edged in lace.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Labor Day always brings occasion for sober reflection upon the steadily expanding life of our nation. It also affords a sounding board for political tricksters and social agitators to air their views under the guise of redeemers and reformers of all the ills that have ever beset the race. We have already heard some of these "plans of salvation" proclaimed in connection with the observance of this year's Labor Day, notably the nation-wide addresses of Messrs.
Browder and Lewis.

One would do well to read again some of the classic utterances of the American chapter in the record of Labor and Capital. For example, Samuel Gompers' great address on February 22, 1918, in the Lexington Avenue theater in New York; Viscount James Bryce's
address delivered November 16, 1911, at the Waldorf-Astoria; the address of Andrew Carnegie, delivered at Braddock, Pa., on the occasion of the dedication of the Carnegie library of that community; the address of Henry W.
Grady at the University of Virginia, June 25, 1889; the address of Theodore Roosevelt, delivered at the Minnesota State Fair, 1910; and as many of the editorials of Jerome Jones, of the Journal of Labor, as you can put your hands on. I have just re-read the addresses referred to above, and I read what Mr. Jones writes every week. These, and many other genuine Americans who believe in our ideals of democracy and the eternal principles of the Golden Rule, may well be pondered in this hour of unrest when so many wild schemes are abroad.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: This is a sorrow to many girls, as I know, and maybe if you will comfort me,
you will comfort many. Some of us have to sit at home with our families on Sunday afternoons and moonlight nights while other friends fight off the boy friends.
I am rather good looking, well dressed, live in a beautiful home and can entertain in it. My family is prominent in our community and we have plenty of family friends. I am not an antique but don't run riot. My pleasure is mostly reading and radio because I am not in the swim with the other young people. What is the trouble? DEPRESSED.

Answer: Perhaps your mother has fallen down on her job in not having seen to it that you learned to play games, take part in sports which would automatically put you where other young people gather. Maybe you have neglected the girl-friends because you were disappointed at not having boy-friends. Maybe you haven't taken part in any sort of activities in your community and are known as a stay-at-home.

The girl who can't do anything but talk, listen to the radio and watch the flickers is pretty certain to be shunted into the corner while the crowd whizzes by. Barring the maidens who have a heap of smoke on the ball (commonly known as come hither) the modern girl must be able to do the things that take her where the group gathers. You see the days of twos on the sofa are definitely past and gone.

Grandmother could sit in the parlor, looking lovely, and wait for the suit to pop the question. Granddaughter can't follow the fashion set by grandmother and get as far as first base. For the boys don't barge in to sit with shy maidens who stay at home with mama and knit. They cruise around until they locate the crowd that can stir up excitement and give them a run for their money.

Just take a look at the new number that goes over with a bang. She puts on shorts, chases balls over courts and greens, one eye on the balls and the other on the boys. Presently she slips into a bathing suit, dives like a duck and swims like a fish. A few hours later you find her in evening togery dancing the Big Apple and the Susie Q. She is an accomplished athlete who can sling
a mean racquet, swim, ride, dance, drive a car.

A beautiful home and a fine family heritage is merely a good background for a girl. In these days she must have accomplishments to show against the background.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am a junior in university and have got myself balled up with books and girls. There was a gal back home who was fine and well-born but her parents couldn't afford to send her to college. She loves me. The one in the college town is just like her and the good qualities of character.
Her family is well-to-do and she is in college in a distant state.
We don't see a great deal of one another for while she is at home on vacation I am at my home and we are like ships passing in the night. She says she loves me. Which is the one for me?
R. D.

Answer: You had better do a little backtracking and the two gals will have you tied in a double bow knot. Aren't you a little previous in getting serious with either of them while your dad is buying your books, paying your board and tuition and expecting you to yield him good return on his investment? There's a long, long trail ahead of you and the less baggage you tote the better time you will make. Come clean with the gals and tell them that for the present you are not in position to talk turkey and consequently you think it best to confine yourself to a lighter line. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Now Is the Time To Give Your Hair

A Reconditioning Treatment
By LILLIAN MAE.

Summer's sun and the ocean's salt waves just naturally do things to hair—things that aren't so noticeable until vacation time is over, or perhaps until we are ready for a new fall permanent.

Whether your permanent is old or new, or in prospect, steps should be taken at this time to recondition your hair. Of course, as I always advocate, a most important part of care of the hair is brushing with a long bristled brush, always upward and away from the scalp. Be sure to do this before the shampoo, and then use a mild, non-drying product. I am using such a shampoo that I like better than anything I've ever used before.

I like to take care of my hair at home, and this item makes it possible for me to do so with great results. After dampening my head thoroughly with warm water, I apply the liquid, diluted with an equal amount of water, working it thoroughly through my hair and into my scalp, reveling in the rich, foamy suds, then rinse and start all over. After the second application, the hair and scalp should be rinsed at least three times. The result is soft, easily managed hair which sets with the minimum of effort—though if you prefer, I can tell you of a creme wave set which applied to the damp hair, helps it to fall into lovely and lasting waves. Even if acteristic in that family tree.

Likewise an admixture of negro,
mulatto, quadroon or octoroon blood does not constitute a basis for the legend of the birth of a black or typically negroid child to white or apparently white parents. Such reversions to type simply do not happen. What are known as "sports" in animal breeding are not of that category at all, but gradual variations, mutations, achieved by selective breeding through many generations.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

CHIP OF THE OLD BLOCK.

There's not but three generations between clog and clog, says an old English proverb. American version of the same observation—three generations from shillee-shillee. Poet Dryden expressed it in the line "and seldom three descents continue good."
Still another poet, Walsingham, rendered it in rhyme: "What's illgot scarce to a third heir descends, nor wrongful booty meets with prosperous ends."

It seems that those who haven't noble ancestry to boast about are inclined to sneer at inheritance.
On the other hand those who have it generally have nothing else to boast about.

Transmissible or hereditary characters or traits that tend to improve the race were called "eugen-ic" by Sir Francis Galton, and from Galton's term came the now familiar study of eugenics. Galton's theory was that the individual's parents each contribute an average of 50 per cent of the total inherited characters, each grandparent 25 per cent, and each great-grandparent 12 1/2 per cent, and so on as far back as you have a mind to go.

Gregor Mendel, an Austrian monk, who was born in 1822 (the same date as the birth of Galton in England) experimented in his garden, breeding peas, and out of this research developed the now famous Mendelian theory or "law" of inheritance. According to Mendel's theory or law the protoplasm of the germ cells, the parent cells, that is, the ovum or egg contributed by the female parent and the spermatozoon or fertilizing element contributed by the male. Thus, contains the determining factors of height, color and other characters, these determining factors being called "genes."

Eugenists conceive the genes as existing in pairs—one of each pair coming from the mother, one from the father—in series like the beads of a necklace, in the chromatin material in the nucleus of the germ cell. The genes are immortal.
Through them life goes on and on through countless generations.

Alas, these cunning little genes in the nucleus or heart of the immortal germ-plasm, the fertilized ovum, do not give rise to absolutely unvarying characteristics in the descendant. In the production of any one characteristic, such as eye color or grade of intelligence, many genes may co-operate. Thus one blue-eyed ancestor far back will not be represented by a distinctly blue-eyed individual in a brown-eyed family but nevertheless the blue-eyed influence tends to lighten the brown-eyed char-

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN.

RATHER BREATHLESS.

The Babies Came Thick and Fast.

All her life Anna Lee has wanted a pretty bedroom. And never got it. In the old days at home there was no money to spare what with the three younger children still in school and the house needing this for the roof and that for the porch. Then when Anna Lee married, the babies came thick and fast for the first few years, and Anna Lee's room was usually a cross between baby ward and first aid station.

But eventually her little one trotted off to school one golden autumn morning. And Robert came home that same night with a raise in his pocket. So Anna Lee breathed a big sigh, cried a tear or two for the babies who were trying their wings, and began to think about that dream room. Of course, through the years she'd changed her mind a dozen times as to just what she did want. But always it was going to be a misty tranquil room that would be balm to a lady harassed with the thousand and one details of making a pleasant home.

Serene and Lovely.

Now that the room is actually coming to life, it is just as serene and lovely as she'd always dreamed, even though it is very modern in colorings. The new furniture they bought is bleached mahogany in Adam design and Anna Lee has the walls painted deep old delit blue with a pale off-pink ceiling. A light beige self-patterned rug was her choice for the floor while she used a pale off-pink chiffon at the windows. A monk's cloth in the same blue as that used for the walls makes for a bedspread and the dressing table bench has a top of the same fabric. Beige frames and mats for the pictures and some extra beige cushions add their accent, while lamps and small accessories are in pale pink porcelain.

envelope to Miss Boykin in care of ant Bedrooms." Another bulletin that will be useful on the same subject is "Twelve Ideas for Making Your Bed Pretty" which will also be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Myasthenia.

Your reply to my inquiry about myasthenia when I wrote you a year ago. At the time my husband was receiving glycerin. Later he was given prostigmin by mouth. In four months he has improved wonderfully on this. He takes two prostigmin tablets three times a day. This new remedy should be a great boon to sufferers from myasthenia. (Mrs. W. J. L.)

Answer—Thank you. Myasthe-nia gravis is a chronic progressive muscular weakness, beginning usually in muscles of the face and throat, but without accompanying atrophy or wasting of the muscles.
Prostigmin, according to Bulletin of Neurological Institute, December, 1935, cases have been restored to health by this medicine administered orally over a period of several months.

Eye Wash.

Is it borax or boric acid that is used for eye wash, and what strength? (L. G. G.)

Answer—Rounded teaspoonful boric (formerly called boric) acid in pint of boiled water which contains also a rounded teaspoonful common salt. This may be used freely as desired, in eye wash, or as drops in the eye, being mildly antiseptic, nonirritating. It should be made up fresh and used agreedly warm.

Night Work.

I work nights and have trouble keeping awake. How about taking something to keep me awake?
What do you suggest? (W. R. C.)

Answer—More physical work, muscular work or play a man does, the longer hours of sleep he needs. Sedentary folk require less sleep. Try a cup or two of coffee with midnight lunch.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Friday.—It was very warm on the dock yesterday afternoon when we saw the President board the Potomac.
But he sat himself down on the upper deck and looked so blissful at getting off, I decided he wouldn't even notice the heat. Of course, when they got under way, there would be a breeze and the upper deck, which has no awning, would be a wonderful place from which to see the Highlands of the Hudson. The President told Mr. Harry Hopkins that he would have to stay awake for that sight, as Mr. Hopkins had never seen the Highlands from the water.

Apparently much of Mr. Hopkins' time on the boat is spent sleeping, which I think is a good way to spend one's time on a cruise. James cheerfully said they probably would have very rough weather, but everyone responded that they had no objections. They were prepared for any kind of cruising. My husband said, "All the plasters will be put on when we begin to roll," an allusion to a former cruise when the boat is spent sleeping, which I think is a good way to spend one's time on a cruise.

I have often wished my husband and James were not such good sailors. I can remember the day when James was far from a good sailor, and so I know seasickness is something you can conquer and he has a perfect right to tease the rest of us.

Mrs. Scheider and I had been shopping in Poughkeepsie, so we joined the procession down to the dock and had to wait for the President's party for a short while. All the neighborhood, at least all the youthful element, came to look at the car and wonder just what we were doing drawn up to the curb and chatting together.
Finally, a policeman came along to tell us the other cars were going down another street and we followed him. Quite an excitement for the young fry.

Of course, when we met the others, I had to turn around and I stalled my car and did all the things you don't want to do, but which you always seem to do when anyone is watching. When everyone was on board, we came back and went in swimming and felt the only comfortable spot in the world was the pool.

Somehow or other, as long as you are doing things, you can stand the heat, but the minute you stop and begin to think about it, it seems unbearable.

I felt as though I had gone back to the middle ages when I saw a headline in the paper this morning that a parley had been called on "piracy." We think we have gone so far away from the things that happened in the past, but one headline like this makes you feel we are all very much as we used to be.

GERMANY'S HEALTH PRO-GRAM BEGINNING TO SHOW RESULTS.

When a nation goes so far as to incorporate physical training in its educational policy and to require manual service of its young citizens, it is only natural that the rest of the world should await results with the keenest of interest. We want to know, among other things, how such a program will affect the health of that nation.

In Germany, where physical training is now given government encouragement and support such as it receives in no other country, preliminary reports indicate a marked improvement in the health of its youth. To quote from Dr.
Theodor Wilhelm, former assistant director of the German Institute of International Education, who was a recent visitor to this country:

"It is too early to give the full effect of the physical training program in Germany, but in 1934, when labor service was compulsory, five per cent of those enrolled were subject to minor illnesses. This year only 1 per cent of the enrollment have been subject to such illnesses."

Compulsory labor service, regarded as one of the most important projects of the German government, may be compared to our own Civilian Conservation Corps, in which outdoor activity and an adequate diet have always brought a marked improvement in the health of its members. The labor service is, however, restricted to youths between the ages of 18 and 25, and the nine months' service is compulsory. Mornings are given to such work as the reclamation of swamps, construction of roads, etc. In the afternoon there are classes and physical training.
Labor service accounts for only

One of the best things about this health program is that school children now have a land service year. During this year they are transferred from the cramped cities to the countryside, where they engage in physical tasks of practical value, in addition to their gymnastics.

Perhaps the greatest impetus to physical training is given by the youth movement, "which is," Dr.
Wilhelm explained, "similar to your Boy Scouts, except that it is on a much larger scale. Groups of boys or girls get together every week end and march out into the country. It is nothing for them to march from 10 to 25 miles. They camp where the natural scenery will contribute to their games."

"I believe such a healthful recreation to be reflected both in the improved health of the labor camps, and in the good eyesight of the young people. In Holland according to reports, every sixth boy wears glasses, while in Germany only one-half of 1 per cent wear glasses."

As pointed out by Dr. Wilhelm, the youth movement is by no means confined to Germany. It is already strong in France and England, and in the United States physical training is encouraged at the camps of the Boy and Girl Scouts, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W.
C. A. and the CCC. These camps were included in a tour made by German youth leader Dr. Wilhelm.

INSTALLMENT 1.

"Don't nice girls ever stay at home any more to be the comfort of their fathers' declining years?" the doctor demanded pathetically. "If ever any old man wasn't in a decline," Gloria Herford said with an unfeeling laugh. She got up from the breakfast table and went around to sit on the arm of her father's chair. Her father, finding this agreeable, dropped his paper and locked an arm about her.

"Is that all the breakfast you're going to eat?" he asked, diverted from the original trend of their conversation.

"I'm gorged, darling," Gloria said absently. "Gorged on half a cup of black coffee and a slice of Melba toast."

"I had orange and grapefruit juice upstairs. Annie brings it up, God bless her! I have it at seven, take my bath, do my exercises, air my bed—am I interesting you?"

"You're interested me, Gloria, since you were a baby saying 'ga-ga' at me. But now you're puzzling me a bit, and your mother, too. I don't go with her into all the things she wants you to do, but it seems to me—pretty girl of 19—other pretty girls—luncheons—dances—"

"Father," Gloria said in a dreamy tone, "you don't really want me to come out in society?" "Isn't it the normal thing for a girl to do, Gloria? I mean—Margaret and Kitty and Joan—aren't those girls going to get into white gowns and have flowers sent 'em? Your mother—after all, her people were the Penhyns, you know—didn't she have a lot of that flummery?"

"Indeed she did!—More hot coffee, Dad?" Gloria had pulled a chair close to his and was busy-ing herself with his needs. "But, darling," she persisted, "things have changed in the 25 years since Mother came out. Mother had 116 bouquets of flowers—I'd consider it wicked to let people waste money on me that way! About $500 worth of flowers, with caterers stepping on them and hot air wilting them! And that's only one detail."

"If you have a dad who's willing to pay the bills, Gloria, what harm does it do? I mean—well, society hasn't ever meant much to me; I have my own friends. Sometimes I let your mother drag me to some-thing—it doesn't matter to me whether it's the rich Smiths or the poor Joneses. But I'm an old man, my dear; I'm getting up to 60. You're young and pretty, and your mother's rather set her heart on your making a little social splash."

"B-r-r!" said Gloria, with a shudder. "Why not give your mother a year, dear? Go around with the other girls, have your coming-out party, work in the Junior League, and then, if you don't like it, drop out!"

"Not so simple, dad. Time goes by like lightning, and pretty soon you find that you've been out two years—three years—and where are you? That's the time you ought to announce your engagement, and how Jan Lightner, and I'm mad about Freddy Poock. But they're married! The others are all pipsqueaks and boobies and bores and—well, pipsqueaks. So I'm going into business. I've finished my stenography course; now I'm going to take a hotel manager's course."

The doctor looked at her thoughtfully. What he saw was not new to his eyes; he had but the one child, and he and she and her mother had been together almost unbrokenly for the entire course of Gloria's life. In her babyhood he had managed even on his busiest days to have Gloria brought to him when she awakened in the morning. On Sundays she had accompanied him and her mother on country drives; on vacations to Havana or Hawaii, Gloria had been included in the party; mummy and dad had been her world; as she had been theirs.

Somewhere in Gloria's grammar school years there had been a subtle change in the status of the Herford family as a family. The doctor, always prosperous and busy, had become fashionable as well. His pretty wife, gallant and serene in her harder, earlier years, had developed new tastes and desires. Ada Herford liked being rich; she knew exactly in what fashionable suburb she wanted to buy her home, exactly who belonged and who did not belong to the smart set. After all, she had been the daughter of a rich man a few years earlier; she had had a coming-out party that was still remembered. It was delightful to her, after a dozen years of financial and social eclipse, to emerge again, with a smart car, a correctly appointed home, and a successful and handsome husband. Gloria, whose mother had been her only nurse and very often the family cook as well when she was five, had found herself at 15 a privileged little person who went to one of California's finest schools, spent her summers in an elaborately fitted log cabin on Lake Tahoe, and had her own riding-horse in the Burlingame Club stables.

She had taken it all easily enough, then. Social distinctions had meant nothing to her, would perhaps never mean much to her. But presently Mrs. Herford, rapturously swimming in this brimming river of pleasantness, had found herself on a snag. Gloria, at 19, had wanted something to do.

Beauty parlors and girls' luncheons, golf and bridge and polo riding, dances and dinners had not seemed a real occupation to Gloria. She had fretted and fussed under the menace of a coming-out party; she had said it was all silly. She had not wanted to go to Honolulu with the Watsons, nor to New York with the Petries. "Those are vacations, Mummy! And you have to do something hard—some sort of work, before you can have a vacation. I want a year-round position."

Determinedly, Gloria had taken a course in typewriting and stenography. She had graduated third in a class of 80; it had been a foregone conclusion that she would be among the first half-dozen. Things came easy to her when she wanted to do them.

Then there had arisen the situation which was so disturbing Gloria's father on this sunny September morning. Mrs. Herford had decided, once and for all, that Gloria must be introduced to society at a large party in early November. Five hundred invitations to the tea; a dinner for about 40; a dance for perhaps 200. Gloria's picture would not do. Gloria's frock must be straight from Paris; "Lucette et Cie" would import several for the buds of the year, and Gloria's must be early be-spoken; she must have first choice.

These plans had been announced to Gloria herself only last night. Gloria had said, pleasantly enough, but with invincible determination, that she could not fall in with them at all. She thought Mummy had understood how she felt. She was going to the university at Berkeley for an eight-weeks' course in accounting. With the uncomfortable husband and father for witness the two women had talked it out. Or, rather, they had only started to talk it out, for after a few minutes of it Mrs. Herford had retreated from the scene in agitated tears. She had been dressing to go to the Lundborgs for an hour of music when the conversation took place; she had felt unfit for any social effort as it went on; she had finally gone tearfully to bed. The doctor, reluctantly getting into evening clothes for the Lundborg musicale, had accepted the change of plan with alacrity, delighted to find himself with a free evening. Gloria had seen that her mother was comfortable, had sat for two hours on the foot of her mother's bed, maintaining good naturedly but with an unrelenting sureness that she would not do what her mother had arranged for her to do and that she had her own quite different plans.

"Why aren't you at Kitty's tonight?" "Because I have a good book, Mummy, and I want to read in bed."

"Oh, read in bed! A girl of 19 with everything in the world to enjoy, and she wants to read in bed!"

"You and your mother didn't have a break last night?" the doctor presently asked, in the course of the breakfast talk. "Break?" Mummy and I? Oh, Daddy, no!"

"Well," he said, slightly reassured, "I thought not. You're going up to see her now?" "Oh, certainly," Gloria had been arranging a tray as they talked; now she put some letters and a folded newspaper on it. Her father, with the usual kind de-parted. The girl, balancing her burden carefully, went up through the bright hallways and knocked, with a corner of the tray, on a bedroom door.

It was opened immediately. Hedda was there; she had run her mistress's bath a few minutes earlier and was straightening the pleasant, sun-lighted apartment. Mrs. Herford was back in bed.

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

SAVED FROM THE INDIANS. John Kinzie was a backwoodsman and fur trader. For eight years he had been dealing with Indians around the southern and western sides of Lake Michigan. Many of them were his friends.

Meanwhile a little friend of the prisoners had seen their danger, and was trying to save them. A half-breed Indian girl had slipped away from camp. Remembering how kindly Mrs. Kinzie had treated her, she wanted with all her heart to keep her from harm.

Running as fast as she could, the girl reached the place where Chief Sanganash was staying, and told him of the danger. This chief was an old friend of John Kinzie, and when the chief spoke to him, he quickly set out to save the white man. Reaching the camp, he found the warriors making ready to slay their prisoners with tomahawks.

"Stop!" cried Chief Sanganash. "You shall not kill these people! They are my friends."

So important was this chief that his words were obeyed. The Kinzies were saved from death, and later were freed.

After the return of peace, the whites of the region looked upon Sanganash as a good friend. They spoke of him by an English name, "Billy Caldwell." A town in Illinois was named Shabbona, in honor of Chief Bull-Like-a-Bear. When the half-breed girl grew up, she married a white man, Joseph Father.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 61

"March!" the warrior women commanded, prod- ing Tarzan with spears. The ape-man obeyed, walking behind the men who were slave-husbands of the amazons. Tarzan spoke to them in English. Only one answered. He was Troll, captured by Wood and Van Eyk.

Tarzan inquired about Wood. "He's in a jam," Troll replied; "he was fool enough to get a crush on that devil Queen, and she sentenced him to death for trying to escape. It's an awful mess. But it won't last long. Wood'll be executed in a couple of days."

In two hours they reached the Kaji city. There Tarzan immediately excited the most eager attention. Scores of women warriors crowded about him, appraising his robust figure, each secretly planning how she might induce Gonalfa to give him to her as a slave-husband.

Soon captives and captors entered the throne hall of the sombre castle. Across the room a figure crouched on a throne. At sight of him, Tarzan was surprised almost into a show of emotion. The man was Woorra! But how was it possible? He had seen Woorra killed!
